

JAPAN SUBMITS PLAN FOR PEACE TO GENERAL CHIANG; RECOGNITION OF PEKING GOVERNMENT CONSIDERED

Naval Expansion Placed Ahead of Tax Revision

MESSAGE URGING IMMEDIATE ACTION IN FEW DAYS

Plans Will Not Be Rejected Until Georgia's Son, Committee Chief, Offers With President.

SHOW THE WORLD, NOTE OF PLAN

Financing of New Authorizations Will Be Delayed Until Later.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The House today said that it intends to rush through authorization legislation authorizing a bigger navy before Congress meets the pressing question of rate tax revision.

The committee members had set for January 15 originally as the date for their measure would be for house consideration.

However, well informed persons indicated that President Roosevelt will send Congress a special message within the next few days urging immediate authorization of expansion beyond that approved.

"Show the World." The action would be in line with recent statement by Chairman Taylor, Democrat, Colorado, regarding the President's plan, regarding the President's plan, regarding the President's plan.

Taylor said Mr. Roosevelt would tell the "heightened wisdom" for the United States to fall to show the world that we are going to defend ourselves.

Some leaders expressed belief that the House could dispose of legislation within two or three days and it would not delay revision materially.

The bill would not provide an account for the vessels it authorized, they said. The question of financing a start on the new program could be decided later in session.

Several members said details of proposed bill probably would be known until Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the naval committee, conferred with the President.

Horizontal Enlargement. But they concurred in a forecast by Taylor that it would be "a strong, horizontal enlargement."

Naval committee members called attention to the fact that, while several additional battleships of the 1900-ton class could be constructed without new authorization, Congress would have to ease the authorizations of the son-Tammell act before more son-Tammell or aircraft carriers could be constructed.

Two battleships are under construction at the Brooklyn and Philadelphia navy yards, and the president already has asked Congress for funds to start two more the coming fiscal year.

WEN FIRMS TO BUILD 20 TO 43 SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission announced today seven shipping companies had agreed to build 20 to 43 ships for use in the foreign trade within the next four years.

On return, the commission approved long-term operating subsidies, aggregating $7,359,000 annually, for the lines.

Similar agreements now being negotiated with other companies bringing to 63 the number of ships to be constructed with the

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia, who is something of a picture subject himself, today previewed several photographs of LaGuardia and others—with mixed reaction.

At the annual press photographers' exhibition, the mayor gazed at a prize-winning study of Manager Bill Terry, of the New York Giants, taken by John Rooney, of the Associated Press, showing Terry forlornly seated in the dugout, hand over face.

"That's Jim Farley the night after the (city) election," LaGuardia commented.

But when he viewed a picture of himself with lips pursed and titled "pediculous," the mayor grunted, stepped back, took another look and defined: "Pediculous—lousy."

LEADERS CERTAIN WAR BALLOT PLAN WILL BE DEFEATED

Passage of Amendment Is Demanded by Four Peace Organizations in Letter to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Administration leaders concentrated today on efforts to assure defeat of the proposal for a people's vote before the United States could enter any foreign war.

Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip, said there was "absolutely no chance" for passage of the measure, a constitutional amendment by Representative Ludlow, Democrat, Indiana.

To Decide Today. The House is scheduled to decide tomorrow whether to take up the legislation and act upon it.

Boland and other party leaders made a canvass which the Pennsylvaniaian said showed the administration had a "good working majority" against action on the proposal.

Some leaders said privately that one reason they desired to dispose of Ludlow's legislation quickly was because any prolonged debate might include "incendiary talk" about other nations.

Passage Demanded. Full discussion and passage of the amendment was demanded by four peace organizations in an open letter to House members.

The letter asserted that a referendum would serve notice on other countries that, if the American people were aroused to war, "they would enter the conflict of their own free will and with a determination that would make them a doubly dangerous foe."

It was signed by the National Council for Prevention of War, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, World

Columbus Roberts' Sister Robbed After Thief Tries To Smother Her

GREENVILLE, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Tessie G. Williams, prominent Greenville resident and former postmistress here, was robbed of $25 and two diamond rings by an unidentified man who tried to smother her with a bathrobe as she entered her home last night.

Mrs. Williams, an elderly widow, is a sister of Columbus Roberts, state commissioner of agriculture. She has lived alone several years, operating a small store.

She left the store about 9 p. m. with some of the day's receipts. Upon opening the front door of her home, she said, someone seized her, threw a bathrobe over her head and tried to tie the cord around her throat.

BALLOT IN HOUSE ON LIQUOR ISSUE TOMORROW HOPED

Numerous Amendments Must Be Considered Before Vote; Store Plan Is Still Held Possible.

Both sides gird for crucial test.

Except for tax reorganization measure, Senate has little work to do.

By The Associated Press.

The liquor issue will continue to hold right of way in the House today, overshadowing for the time being all other legislation pending in either branch of the general assembly.

After a day and a half of argument before the week-end recess, House leaders expressed hope of winding up the debate and reaching a vote by tomorrow at the latest on Representative Ross Thomas' bill to legalize whisky in the six counties with more than 50,000 population.

Pro-liquor legislative sources in the legislature came predictions that the work of the special session would be virtually completed if the liquor measure is enacted by both branches and the Senate passes the house-approved tax reorganization plan.

Claim Solution. Supporters of the Thomas bill contend it would solve the state's revenue problems by bringing in about $4,000,000 annually in liquor taxes. Opponents deny that it would produce more than $1,000,000 at the most.

Numerous amendments must be considered before the bill is put to a vote, and the possibility still remained that a state store plan might be offered as a substitute.

This was predicted before the current debate began, but nothing of that nature has been introduced.

Two Amendments. Representative Grayson, of Chatham, said he had under consideration two amendments to the Thomas bill, one of which would include some features of a state store plan by authorizing the state to operate storage warehouses in wet counties.

The other tentative proposal, he said, would permit counties other than the "big six" to seek local option through a county referendum within six months after the bill became law.

Both sides marshalled forces over the week-end with a view to having full voting strength on hand when the final test comes.

Representative Sabados, of Dougherty, a leader among opponents of the bill, declared it would pass by a comfortable margin. But the dry bloc expressed confidence the house would uphold the "mandate of the people" as recorded in the state referendum last June when the prohibition law was sustained for the second time in two years.

Strict Regulation. In the first rounds of debate those speaking against the bill indicated concern as to how the dry counties would prevent the flow of liquor from the six where it would be legalized if the measure were passed.

Thomas and others asserted that strict regulations in the bill would insure greater protection for counties desiring to remain dry than exists at present against bootleg liquor.

Under the bill's provisions licenses could be issued for sale or manufacture in the six counties affected—Fulton, DeKalb, Bibb, Chatham, Muscogee and Richmond—only within the corporate limits 60 Royal and Noble Houses Represented in Brilliant Ceremony; 20 Royal Carriages Take Guests to Cathedral Where Archbishop and 20 Priests Perform Rites.

ATHENS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Prince Paul, heir-presumptive to the Greek throne, and Princess Frederika Luise of Hanover were married today before a brilliant assemblage of royalty in the ancient ruins of the Greek Orthodox church.

The ceremony was performed in the rose-decorated cathedral by the Archbishop of Athens, assisted by 20 priests. Representatives of 60 royal and noble houses of Europe were guests.

Rings symbolizing the union of the 35-year-old prince and the 20-year-old princess—granddaughter of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany—were placed on the bride's fingers by the Greek Orthodox church.

The ceremony was performed by the German evangelist pastor at the royal palace.

After a reception and wedding luncheon, the newlyweds retired to a private residence near Athens.

The bride also wore a tiara surmounted by a miniature diamond

W. T. KUHN DIES; EX-PHOTOGRAPHER

Pioneer Commercial Picture Maker Succumbs in College Park at 83.

Atlanta's pioneer commercial photographer, William T. Kuhns, 83, died yesterday afternoon at his home in College Park.

He has been in failing health for some time. His brother and sister were with him at the time of his death.

Mr. Kuhns came to Atlanta as a young man with his father, W. T. Kuhns Sr., in 1870, and together they established a photographic office at 33 1-2 Whitehall street. For many years, they were the leading photographers here, having learned the art in New York before going to Florida because of sickness in the family.

After the death of his father, Kuhns and his brother, Charles A. Kuhns, operated the studio on Whitehall street. A few years ago William retired.

Charles now operates a studio in East Point.

Before his retirement, Mr. Kuhns had been active in club work. He was a member of the Gate City Guards, Knights Templar, Knights of Pythias and of the Georgia Lodge No. 96, F. & A. M.

Surviving are his sister, Miss Isabella Kuhns, and his brother, Charles, with whom he made his home at 220 East Mercer avenue, College Park.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at Howard L. Carmichael's Funeral Home. The place of burial will be announced later.

SENATOR DEMANDS SHAKE-UP OF I. C. C. TO STOP 'RAIDING'

Wheeler Accuses Commission of Disregarding 'The Plain Facts' in Approving Railway Loans.

NEED NEW BLOOD, MONTANAN SAYS

Calls for End of Trick Rabbits in Solution of Nation's Rail Problem.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, demanded reorganization of the Interstate Commerce Commission today on the ground that some of its members had permitted railroads to make "raids on the Treasury" in violation of "the spirit of the law."

Wheeler, chairman of the senate committee on interstate commerce, asserted in a formal statement that laxity of the finance division of the I. C. C. was responsible for improper financial practices of some of the railroads.

Criticizes Loan Approval. His most caustic criticism dealt with the division majority's approval of Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to the Erie and Baltimore & Ohio railroads.

Charles D. Mahaffie, of the division, dissented from the majority view in both cases.

In addition to Mahaffie, the division is composed regularly of B. H. Meyer, chairman, and Claude H. Foster, in the B. O. division, Commissioner Carroll Miller participated, voting with the majority.

Asserting that the division or its staff "needs new life and new blood," Wheeler said it was "high time that we discard the use of trick rabbits in solving our railroad problem, develop and adhere to a sound, long-term policy, and confide its administration to officials who will understand the need for that sort of policy and faithfully support laws already passed and to be enacted, embodying such policy."

"Disregard Facts." The Montanan declared in the Erie and Baltimore & Ohio loan cases the "finance division of the commission has disregarded the plain facts of the railroad situation and the equipment purchases of an act of congress."

He added: "The action of the majority of the commissioners was a violation of common sense, and of the spirit of the law."

Under the law, the RFC is forbidden to lend to a railroad, except for equipment purchases or property maintenance, until the I. C. C. has certified that the road is not in need of reorganization, he said.

Loan to Erie. Last month the I. C. C. approved a loan of $6,000,000 to the Erie on condition the loan be guaranteed by the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad.

Although a majority of the finance division certified that the Erie was not in need of reorganization, Wheeler said, "the facts showed beyond question that the Erie needed reorganization."

The loan was not made because the Chesapeake & Ohio refused to guarantee it. The Erie defaulted on its bond interest and Chairman Jesse Jones, of the RFC, indicated it would be reorganized.

"The St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern and other roads received a clean bill of financial health from the RFC and within a few months thereafter went into receivership," Wheeler said.

NIPPONESE EXPECT OFFER TO CHINESE WILL BE REJECTED

Steps Taken by Tokyo To Disavow Central Regime Through the Recall of Ambassador Kawagoe.

CABINET TO HOLD MEETING TODAY

Route of 500,000 Troops of Defenders in North Reported by Japanese.

TOKYO (Monday), Jan. 10.—(UP)—The Japanese government has submitted terms for establishment of peace in the Far East to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China, it was learned today.

In anticipation of Chiang's rejection of the terms, it was understood, steps have been taken to formulate future Japanese policy toward China, including possible recognition of the newly established Peking provisional government in North China.

At the same time it was understood that an extraordinary session of the cabinet today would consider the immediate recall of the Japanese ambassador to China, Shigeru Kawagoe, as part of the plan to disavow the Chinese central government.

A foreign office spokesman, stating that he was unable to reveal the nature of the cabinet discussions, said that "Japan is prepared either for peace or protracted hostilities."

No announcement of the cabinet's action could be expected for the present, it was said.

HALF MILLION CHINESE REPORTED IN ROUTE

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Half a million Chinese soldiers were reported by Japanese to be in full retreat tonight on the entire North China war front.

A Dornier (Japanese News Agency) dispatch from Peking, headquarters of Japan's North China army, said the Chinese had been demoralized by repeated warplane bombardment and the sweep of the Japanese infantry's victories.

Advices from North China Saturday, however, said the whole North China area was suffering freezing temperatures, aggravated by strong winds. Both Chinese and Japanese troops were undergoing acute hardships.

Attack by 50 Planes. A Japanese naval spokesman said the Sunday afternoon raid on Nanchang was the heaviest of the war, with 50 planes, including 36 heavy bombers, attacking the Chinese airdrome. The spokesman described Nanchang as "the principal Chinese airbase."

LYNCHING BILL FOES CHOOSE HARRISON TO CARRY ON FIGHT

Mississippians Certain to Contribute Colorfully to Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(P)—A determined band of southern senators agreed today to send Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, to the front to carry on the fight against the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill.

Harrison disclaimed any intention of participating in a filibuster. He told the senate he would address the chamber tomorrow to explain the bill, not to delay a vote.

One of the senate's most powerful speakers, Harrison was certain, however, to make a lively contribution to the colorful discussion that has raged since Thursday.

Some of Harrison's colleagues made no bones about their intention to prevent a vote, but the bill's proponents expressed confidence the filibuster could be broken by the end of the week.

Senator Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, gave admiring colleagues a three-hour lesson in the art of filibustering Saturday.

Twirling a pair of silver-rimmed spectacles, Reynolds rocked on his heels and delivered himself of opinions on a variety of subjects. Except for occasional drinks of water, which likely as not would remind him of a story, the dashing, athletic southerner hardly missed a beat.

He made use of almost every conceivable time-consuming device. He read from numerous newspapers and magazines, viewing with alarm what he found therein. If he mentioned airplanes, for example, he would take occasion to give their cruising speed.

Students Find Debating Is Not Altogether Serious

These international debaters could find nothing to worry about in their debate at Agnes Scott College, so they took time out to "make cracks at" each other's speeches. It was all in fun, though Australian debater R. W. aid of federal subsidies, the commission said.

The seven companies receiving long-term contracts agreed to build 20 vessels by 1942, starting 14 of them this year. The commission said it also required these companies to develop plans for 25 additional ships.

Another 10 ships.

The commission added that the Export Steamship Corporation of New York, which was not included in the agreements announced today, was prepared to build nine or ten ships if a satisfactory subsidy agreement could be worked out.

Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy estimated it would cost $110,000,000 to build all the vessels.

The commission also announced that short-term contracts had been made with six companies "pending a further study of their problems." Kennedy said that if these companies qualified for long-term subsidies 10 additional vessels would be built.

Kennedy, whose statement was issued here although he is now on the coast, said the long-term agreements provided for automatic cancellation and a return of 25 per cent of the subsidies if construction was not undertaken according to schedule.

END OF SANCTIONS BY LEAGUE IS SEEN

Britain, France Held Trying To Regain Aid of Smaller Nations.

GENEVA, Jan. 9.—(P)—League of Nations circles today indicated Great Britain and France were resolved to strip the League of its power to impose sanctions in an attempt to regain the co-operation of smaller nations.

A joint Anglo-French declaration at the opening of the council session January 17—the 100th league meeting—was expected to lead to the death sentence on the penal clauses of the League covenant.

It was generally agreed Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary general of the League, had gone to London and would go to Paris to put the finishing touches on the declaration.

The statement was understood to be designed to reassure other powers their membership in the League did not mean they were supporting the Anglo-French side of the world's quarrels.

DEFEAT PREDICTED FOR WAR VOTE BILL

Peaceways and the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Representative Fish, Republican, New York, asserted in a statement that opponents had engaged in "misleading propaganda." He referred especially to the assertion of Speaker Bankhead that alien forces were supporting the proposal.

To Offer Amendments.

Fish said amendments would be offered to exclude from the referendum attacks by armed forces, actual or immediately threatened upon the United States or its territorial possessions, or by any non-American nation against any country in the western hemisphere.

Representative Bigelow, Democrat, Ohio, in a broadcast debate with Representative Celler, Democrat, New York, said no war should be declared "without the direct consent of the people who must do the paying and the dying."

Celler asserted disunion of a nation in time of war was "fatal" and that disunion would be intensified "by the self-seeking demagogues who would be let loose by the referendum."

Interest in the capital was divided between the referendum test and the probable congressional reaction to President Roosevelt's pledge of a "no compromise" fight against a "handful" of businessmen, bankers and industrialists.

The pledge, made by the President at a special voice referendum night, was expected generally to stimulate discussion in congress of new anti-trust legislation and the need for government co-operation with business.

Appropriation Bill.

Mr. Roosevelt has revealed he would send congress a special message on new laws against monopoly, but he has given no hint as to when it might be expected.

After disposing of the Ludlow amendment, the house will get back to consideration of the independent office appropriation bill, which it debated briefly last week. This measure carries about $1,414,000,000 to run such agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission, National Labor Relations Board and others not in any department.

House leaders had intended to begin consideration late in the coming week of the tax revision bill now being completed by a committee.

There were hints today, however, that the tax bill would be delayed to give precedence to legislation authorizing expansion of the naval construction program.

More prolonged speeches by southerners against the anti-lynching bill is in prospect in the senate.

Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, told his colleagues yesterday that he thought opponents of the measure would be justified in holding up all legislation to defeat it.

Administration leaders predicted, however, the opposition speech-making would break down in about 10 days. Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, has threatened to call night sessions if necessary to force a vote.

$50,000,000 IS SOUGHT TO TELL LIQUOR TRUTH

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(P)—A plea for "at least $50,000,000" for "dissemination of the truth about alcohol and intoxicating beverages" was voiced today by the American Business Men's Research Foundation in an open letter to President Roosevelt and congress.

of cities or towns. This, Thomas explained, was designed to preclude the possibility of promiscuous selling of liquor in roadhouses or other establishments scattered about the counties.

No Women.

Another clause would prohibit the employment of women in any place where liquor was sold. Retail sales would be limited to unbroken packages of not less than half-pint size which could not be opened or consumed on the premises. Selling on Sunday would not be allowed.

Retail and wholesale dealers and manufacturers would be required to obtain two licenses—one from the municipality where located and one from the state—and would have to furnish bond. The tax, ranging from 50 cents a gallon on Georgia-made liquor to $2 a gallon on imported alcohol, would be collected by the revenue commission through sale of stamps.

Aside from the tax reorganization measure, drafted to effect numerous changes in the tax assessing and collecting machinery, the senate has little to work on until the house disposes of the liquor question.

MACON CHURCH OPPOSES DRY LAW REPEAL

MACON, Ga., Jan. 9.—(P)—Mulberry Street church congregation this morning voiced condemnation of efforts to legalize sale of alcoholic liquors in the state.

The resolution, offered by Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, also condemned legalization of gambling and the sale of opium.

Bishop Ainsworth said he would submit copies of the resolution to the Governor and to the chairmen of the state house and senate.

tual control of Shanghai and to discuss with the United States and France concerted steps to safeguard imperiled interests of western nations in China.

A high government source tonight said Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would return to London tomorrow from Chequers, his country home, to assume personal command of a British program to curb Japan's expanding power in the Far East.

Stung by Japan's "arrogant encroachment" on western rights in Shanghai, this source stated, Chamberlain has resolved "not to stand for Japanese use of military superiority in the present emergency to force concessions by Japanese troops."

FOOD FASHION NEWS

By RUTH CHAMBERS
Food Expert and Home Economist

It has been said that "Clothes Make The Man." However, it is quite likely that Mothers and Wives would more readily agree that "Foods Make The Man." Especially since it falls their lot to keep their menfolk satisfied with new, appetizing and healthful foods . . . Some want to gain weight, while others want to lose weight, but all of them want to keep eating . . . New foods and new ways of preparing and serving well-known foods are being developed every day. Literally new fashions in food spring forth with the sun. New things that every woman should know. And NOW, you can easily know these things through The Constitution's latest feature . . . It starts in this issue and will continue each morning. Turn to it NOW!

'You'll Never Take My Place on Rock,' Says Worrier

"Don't worry, you'll never knock me out of my place on the Worrying Rock," Bill Ward, self-appointed official worrier for The Constitution "family," declared yesterday, as worrying folks crowded to Hapeville's now-famous shrine. Mr. Ward not only challenged the rights of others to sit on the rock but used his hand to keep anxious worriers away. He said he wasn't worried about being mobbed.

AN ARMY FOR

SERVICE

SOUTHERN BELL telephone employees are constantly training to keep pace with a changing business. They work individually, yet as cooperative parts of an organization, knit together by loyalty to the service. In these respects they are like a vast army, an army for public service.

Their ranks numbered some 20,500 men and women at the end of 1937, growing by 1,600 over 1936. Their payroll was four million dollars higher than for the previous year, reaching close to $26,000,000, most of which was spent in their home communities.

During the year, this army not only maintained the telephone "plant" for your use, but constructed over $27,500,000 worth of new facilities to meet the increased demand for service. At the end of the year, there was about $235 invested in your telephone "plant" per telephone.

An average of 8.6 local calls per day per telephone were handled in 1937, or nine million calls a day. In addition, some 43,800,000 toll and long distance calls were completed in 1937.

A gain in telephones in 1937 brought the Southern Bell Company's total to 1,080,000 by the end of the year.

Taxes increased by about $575,000, mounting to $7,900,000 paid to Federal, State, County and Municipal governments in 1937.

Important figures, these. But more important to telephone users is the army for service, whose sole aim is to give the "most telephone service and the best, at the lowest possible cost consistent with the financial safety of the business."

REDS CONSOLIDATE VICTORY IN TERUEL

Surrender of 6,000 Rebels, Civilians Celebrated; Battle Still Raging.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Spanish government forces, their grip on Teruel tightened by collapse of Insurgent resistance within the city, threw up stronger defenses today against Insurgent columns pressing on the outside.

Feverishly the army worked to consolidate the government's first great offensive victory in the civil war.

The surrender of the Insurgent Teruel garrison and civilians who had taken refuge with them in Asuncion hospital and Santa Clara convent—more than 6,000 persons in all—was completed last night, the government announced.

Eighteen days of siege in which ammunition ran low and supplies of food and water gave out brought the capitulation.

The surrender was a signal for celebrations throughout government Spain. The republic showed praise for General Juan Rojo and his army for capture of the strategic provincial capital in last month's surprise offensive and the blocking of the Insurgent attempt to retake the city.

Military advisers reaching the frontier, however, emphasized that the battle for Teruel—already estimated to have cost 6,000 casualties—was not ended.

Insurgent dispatches said the coms of General Miguel Aranda, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's lower Aragon commander, were encroaching on the outskirts of the city.

YEGGS TAKE $225 FROM BAKERY SAFE

Southern Grocery Company store at 510 Capitol avenue early yesterday, stacked a quantity of groceries in a corner, and then tunneled through a wall to the McRay drug store next door, police reported.

James Thomas, 17, of 518 Fraser street, S. E., and James King, 16, of the same address, were trapped in the drug store and the stolen goods recovered, according to police.

A third negro, about 40, who was stationed outside as lookout, escaped as police arrived, the arrested boys said. They are being held on suspicion of burglary.

Motorman M. H. Blankenship, of 38 Piedmont avenue, reported the theft of $30 by two negroes who boarded his street car at Hale and Lake avenues early yesterday and escaped after threatening a motorist who stopped to aid the operator.

While armed bandits were making hauls in grocery stores and elsewhere, an unidentified man hid in the Jake Johnson garage on Boulevard when it closed Saturday night, broke the penny peanut machine and escaped with several dollars in pennies, police were told.

JACKSON DAY NETS PROFIT OF $400,000

Dinners Expected to Clear Democratic Deficit.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley said tonight that returns from the Jackson Day dinners indicated the party would make a profit of more than $400,000 on them.

The Washington dinner, one of many held throughout the nation yesterday, yielded more than $100,000, he said. Guests there paid $100 a plate, while in New York the cost was $50 and elsewhere $25.

The national committee will receive three-fourths of the money, which probably will be more than sufficient to retire its $200,000 indebtedness.

'Undesirable Literature' Rejected by Officials.

BASEL, Switzerland, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A collection of the recent speeches of President Roosevelt have been banned in Germany as "undesirable literature," it was learned today.

The speeches, with some by Earl Baldwin, former British prime minister, were published in Germany by a Swiss firm at Lucerne.

A number of the books which had been sent to Leipzig were returned to the frontier at Basel, where German officials said they fell under the "undesirable literature" classification of the customs laws.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 10, 1938.

THE BEST CHECK-UP METHOD

An interesting feature of the report by Director John D. Biggers on the unemployment census is the tacit admission that more accurate figures may be obtained by checking a carefully chosen cross-section of the population than by a voluntary census which attempts to reach every family or individual in the country.

Director Biggers stated that the voluntary census, in which 85,000,000 cards were distributed, showed 7,822,912 were jobless in mid-November. He revises this figure to 10,870,000, however, on the basis of a cross-section sampling of the population, in which 1,950,000 persons were contacted, stating that the sample check showed only 72 per cent of the unemployed had sent in cards in the original census.

This admission by Director Biggers is actually a recommendation for the method followed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, which every week tests public opinion on questions of the day, with the results published, exclusively for this section in The Constitution, in the leading newspapers of the nation.

The Institute uses the same cross-section sampling method on which Director Biggers relies for his revised report. Inasmuch as he also advises periodic governmental checks by the same method, to keep a live chart on employment trends, his report amounts to a practical endorsement of the Institute, with the recommendation that the federal government adopt the same plan.

Corroboration of the indorsement is also seen in the fact that, while Director Biggers concludes that 28 per cent of the jobless failed to answer the census cards, the Institute, in a prior release based on its own findings, stated that 26 per cent had failed to reply.

None of these figures, however, may be accepted as completely accurate as to the actual number of normal workers idle. Too many who, even in normal times, would neither have nor desire a wage-earning job, filled in the census cards. There were numerous instances where entire families, among the more ignorant, filled in cards on the general principle that it might ultimately prove profitable. Many women who should, normally, classify themselves as homemakers or housewives, listed themselves as jobless work seekers, and there were other violations of the intent of the census. Probably the 28 per cent of jobless who did not answer were offset by those who listed themselves as jobless when they are, in actual fact, not normal wage earners.

Included in the 7,822,912 total, also, were approximately 2,000,000 who stated they had emergency jobs, such as PWA, CCC or other governmental employment, but did not have regular work of their own particular type.

It is probable that a careful breakdown of the figures would show approximately 6,000,000 or so unemployed who normally expect to be steady wage earners.

THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Few cities in America can boast an organization as active and valuable, according to its type, as the Atlanta Historical Society. The annual meeting last week marked the close of 12 years of steady effort which has resulted in the collection and cataloging of a large amount of manuscript, literature and museum pieces which picture, in part at least, the en-grossing history of Atlanta and its environs.

The record of this city is both colorful and historically important. From the picturesque days of its founding, in the primeval forests when the first railroad spike was driven into the soil, through the fascinating, even though tragic, period of the War Between the States, to the present day, Atlanta has held a place of unique interest in the developing story of America and mankind.

The wealth of historical material to be found here largely accounts for the continuance of the society even through years when it had but meager financial support and received little attention from the outside public. Founded in 1926 by Walter McElreath, the society was carried on in quiet unostentatious manner for 10 years, through the labor and enthusiasm of a small group of members.

In 1936 the society was re-formed on a financial basis that assured sufficient support for a five-year period, largely through the efforts of Jack J. Spalding, president of the organization, and of Mr. McElreath, chairman of the board. Miss Ruth Blair, formerly head of the Department of Archives and History of the state, became the society's executive secretary.

Since 1936 the progress of the society has been rapid and constructive. It maintains headquarters in the Biltmore hotel and is daily proving more and more useful to visitors and citizens, interested in research into the past days of the city's history.

Such an organization is tremendously valuable, both by sentimental and material standards and its sound condition today is a silent tribute to Atlanta's understanding and appreciation of the value of the records of the past. It should receive universal and liberal support.

THE POST OFFICE STORY

Post office receipts are acknowledged by all economic experts to be a reliable indication of the state of business in the territory affected. The story told by the 1937 business done at the post offices in Georgia becomes, therefore, one of the most encouraging indications of satisfactory conditions in this state.

Fifteen Georgia cities, including all the larger centers of population, showed substantial gains for 1937 over 1936. Columbus, Albany and Griffin reported total receipts greater than ever before in their history.

Corroborative figures include gains in bank clearings, more building permits, reopening of textile mills, release of new cash to tobacco growers, and announcement of $4,000,000 in federal funds to be spent in 1938-39 building of highways in this state.

When business prospers, businessmen are active, seeking new customers, corresponding with old. The people have more money to spend, earnings are greater and there is a higher percentage of currency, per individual, in circulation. A given proportion of this money finds its way through the windows of the post offices for stamps and money orders. Thus the higher post office receipts in the state are certain proof that in 1937 there was more money for spending in the state. One is the corollary of the other.

A partial explanation of the prosperity throughout the state lies in the increased average income of the state's farmers. Another factor bringing about the happy result is the big gains in exports through the ports of the state, together with other South Atlantic ports. All bring about a release of more money which eventually finds its way into the pockets of the people and thence back into the channels of retail, wholesale trade and industry.

There is every reason to believe that, when the records of 1938 are completed, the business barometer, post office receipts, will have climbed yet higher in the scale of prosperity.

ROADS TO GEORGIA BEAUTY SPOTS

The Georgia Highway Department announces that it will, in the near future, distribute an illustrated road map of the state. This publication is devised to be more than a mere road map. It is intended to inform tourists and other visitors of the many spots of historic and scenic interest in the state, emphasizing their lure with illustrations and showing the best and easiest routes by which they may be reached.

The department is performing, by the publication of such a map, a service of tremendous importance to the state. The map will lift the veil of obscurity from many places in the state which will, once their existence is known, draw tourists from all over the nation. It will tell the story of the glories of north Georgia's mountain regions and will picture the compelling beauty of the coast and the resorts of south Georgia.

With such a map made readily available to all, visitors to this state will extend their stays within its borders for days in order to visit some of the scenes depicted, while many others who do not now come to the state at all, will be tempted to turn their automobiles toward Georgia.

The illustrated map, undoubtedly, will reimburse the state for whatever it may cost, many times over, in the increased tourist money let loose among the business men, the farmers and the citizens generally of the state.

A historian finds parallels of our New Deal experiences in Greek and Roman annals. Hence an old saw, "Rome wasn't built by the WPA in a day."

His Majesty's gunboat Ladybird was bombed, but didn't sink. Tokyo has therefore forwarded London an apology for inadvertence in the second degree.

A group is busy among us that thinks business and government should join hands—for the looks of the thing, and, perhaps, in self-defense.

There are a couple of versions of why Bill Green and John Lewis don't get along. Either the boys don't understand one another, or they do.

One more missing link has been unearthed, in Java. In time, perhaps, biology will establish a connection between the pro wrestler and man.

Editorial of the Day

DISORDER IN CHINA

(From the Baltimore Sun.)

The warfare in China is throwing that country into ever greater confusion. Not only are ordinary political and economic functions being grievously hampered by the fighting itself, but the heavy economic toll resulting from the widespread destruction of property is further contributing to the general breakdown.

The bulk of China's population has always lived on the narrowest of economic margins. In most cases these people have been only a step or two ahead of destitution. Those who have been living in the battle areas have today been stripped of even this meager security, with the result that many of them, in extreme want, are pouring into other sections, although these other sections are without sufficient organized economic resources to take care of such refugees or even to do more than save their own people from utter poverty.

It will be interesting to observe how well—or poorly—the Japanese manage their military occupation of the conquered territories under these conditions. The growing confusion will in itself make necessary an army of occupation of considerable size. Nor is it likely, considering the existing destitution, that the army of occupation can live off the countryside. For some time, at least, its supplies will have to be brought in from Japan, which will put a severe and perhaps long-continuing strain upon that country's own economic resources.

In short, Japan's troubles will not end when the fighting stops. At the same time, of course, the disorder in China will give substance to the contention of the Japanese that they have invaded China for the purpose of maintaining peace and order there. It must be remembered that this was not true in the first instance. When the invasion began, China was a more peaceful and orderly country than it had been at any time since the revolution. After years of civil strife, China, under Chiang Kai-shek, was at last making measurable progress toward the attainment of political and economic stability.

Thus, as irony would have it, the Japanese have themselves created the disorder that they would now put down. Whether they have the financial means with which to reach that objective is another question.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

BRIGHT BOY WINS WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The scene was the ballroom of the Washington hotel; the time, three years ago. The uncomfortable gilt chairs usually reserved for sitters-out were occupied by rows of pallid, bored stenographers, filing clerks and statisticians. Upon a dais at the end of the room, a stocky, black-eyed, shock-headed fellow bounded back and forth, shouting out recollections of his bright college years.

It appeared that he had been an unsuccessful candidate for the Swarthmore varsity basketball team. Fourteen were chosen, and he was the 15th, condemned to wear the ignominious insignia of the junior varsity. For a time his heart was darkened, but he continued to play his best. Indeed, he so outdid himself that, on the afternoon before the big game, the coach noticed his efforts, handed him a varsity jersey and that evening sent him in to win against Princeton in the big game.

The man was Leon Henderson, now one of the most important idea and fact men in the New Deal, and he told the story as an illustration of how honest effort would be rewarded in the NRA's division of research and planning. He had just made his debut in the administration as director of the division.

EXPERT PROPHET Henderson has come a long way since then, principally because of two remarkably accurate prophecies. The first was made shortly after he took over at the NRA, and was to the effect that a return of good times was to be expected. Being a man with a passion for statistics, to whom all statistics look alike, he based the prophecy in part on the increasing marriage rate and the decreasing number of families doubling up in single houses or apartments. The prophecy was laughed at, but came true.

The second prophecy was made last winter, and repeated again and again all through the spring. It was that the boom times could not last if prices continued to rise and purchasing power continued to contract. If, too, was laughed at. For a time, it gave its maker the name of calamity-howler. And then it, too, came true.

Today, Leon Henderson is worthy of attention, not only because he illustrates so admirably many New Deal peculiarities, but also because, what with one prophecy and another, he is a really influential man. His influence does not come from direct contact with the White House, as Harry Hopkins' or Joe Kennedy's or Tom Corman's does, but from the White House for such major councils of war as the economists' meeting at which the President first considered the proper way to deal with the depression.

His influence comes from his position as fact and idea man. He is a mine of information, statistical, theoretical and practical. His office at the Works Progress Administration, which he serves as economist, is festooned with charts and graphs, piled high with economic reports, and crowded with the literature of economic prophecy.

Half a dozen eminent New Dealers go to him when they want to commit an oration. The left-wing White House advisers rely heavily on him to prove their argumentative points, with such compilations as his recent one charging business with accumulating a speculative inventory. He is one of the chief stirrers-up of the left-wing group in congress.

AMATEUR BUREAUCRACY At present, Henderson is taking a large part in the anti-monopoly crusade. His prophecy of last winter, in which he charged the price rises to monopolistic price-fixing, was an important factor in starting the crusade. Much of the crusade began from his office.

The New Deal peculiarities which he illustrates are his administrative peculiarities. He is strictly an amateur bureaucrat, and the New Deal is pretty much run by amateur bureaucrats. There is nothing conventional about him, as anyone can see who hears his picturesque and rather violent language, observes his somewhat startling taste in costume, or listens to his notions about government. He has positive ideas, and he loves to talk about them, where professional bureaucrats prefer to hold their tongues and keep themselves uncommitted.

He has done all sorts of things. At one moment, while he worked his way through Swarthmore, he was a baseball umpire. At another, he was a factory worker. He got his real start as a teacher, turned economist for the Pennsylvania administration of Gifford Pinchot, and found his way to Washington quite naturally, when left-wing economists began to be in demand here.

AN ANGRY PLAYER Henderson got his real chance with the New Deal because he was belligerent.

A bitter attack on NRA practices at a hearing in 1934 brought a summons to the desk of the great General Hugh S. Johnson, who for the President's eye before the crusade began came from his office.

Now, he is warring again, this time for a vigorous program by the administration to combat the new recession. He has gathered around him his liberal friends in congress, led by Representative Maury Maverick, the excitable Texan. They are ready to fight relaxation of the capital gains and corporate taxes and to demand that the government stop the recession. So strong is Henderson's feeling that he has been telling friends that, if the New Deal does not continue to bear left, he will be leaving the government to take one of the more profitable jobs which private business has offered him.

He can get very angry, angry enough to leave his New Deal colleagues. There was the time he left Swarthmore, with the same basketball team, and at Princeton he became so incensed at the way practice was going that he tore off his suit and left the floor, naked.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

The thing to do
When you're fighting through
The weary, daily grind,
Is to pitch right in,
Strive hard, and grin,
And never look behind.

How Many Hoses
Has Your Wife?

Whether they be silk or rayon or cotton, how many pairs of hose does the average woman possess?
After fairly complete investigation
I know the answer. It is, one pair.

In 99 out of every hundred feminine homes, whether they be hall bedrooms or mansions, the fair ones have one duty every night they must perform. That is, to wash out the hose so they will have 'em clean for use on the morrow.

In washbasins all over the land,
the fragile second-skins for the female legs are being rinsed and wrung out and hung over the furnace radiator or the heater to dry. If procrastination has tempted and they have been left for a morning wash, they are generally soaked inside. Even, in the middle of the rack, to dry quickly before breakfast.

It is, in many cases, the result of comparative poverty. Even the smart business woman making a handsome salary every month is never able to invest in more than one pair of the cobwebby articles at a time.

And I suppose the wives and daughters of wealthy men are always exceeding their budgets, even as you and I.

oping into a humanitarian, as well

NEW YORK.—Here's a piece made up mostly of quotations, but we think that in them all of us can find plenty of food for thought:
H. R. Ekins, United Press correspondent back home from China, tells what he saw:

"I reached Shanghai.

"Three Chinese aerial bombs killed at least 1,600 people, including Americans, in the space of one minute. All these people were civilians. Not one soldier was hit.

"One bomb tore a crater in the road into which one could put a small-sized railway car. It mangled hundreds of children, women and men beyond recognition.

"I went into the countryside.

"Death struck there with the same effectiveness that it struck in the cities.

"Japanese and Chinese planes came down in screaming power divers. Columns of men simply dissolved into fragments of torn flesh.
Houses disappeared in the clouds of dust which settled over the bodies of the families that had been in them.

"I went to Woosung.

"I saw children, women and men die in hundreds. Many of them were blown into pieces too widely scattered to make possible a decent burial. Others were blinded.

"I saw the development of the Chinese 'scorched earth' policy.

"It is designed to destroy everything destructible in the path of the enemy's advance so that he cannot live off the countryside. I saw grain crops leveled, farm houses burned, buildings dynamited, bridges destroyed and even footpaths gashed with great holes so that they could not be walked upon.

"I saw commerce stopped on the mighty Yangtze river—the transport route over which food supplies moved for 100,000,000 people.
I saw children starve when these food supplies were cut off.

"I went into North China.

"The dikes along the rivers, built by the toil of generations of men, were broken and the fields turned into muddy lakes dotted with mounds of rotting grain.

"I heard a description of war from broken Chinese soldiers who were invalided from the front.

"They whispered of men who were chained to their machine guns so that they could not cease firing when they were assigned to cover a retreat. They told of officers who enforced obedience with automatic pistols."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

"DAILY SELF-SURPASS,"

Wordsworth used a phrase in one of his poems—Character of the Happy Warrior—which has made a lasting impression on my mind.

He is presenting his conception of the ideal man. Let me quote the immediate lines in which the phrase, "daily self-surpass," occurs:

"Who, not content that former worth stand fast,
Looks forward, persevering to the last,
From well to better, daily self-surpass,—
This is the Happy Warrior; this is he
That every man in arms should wish to be."

I was detailed to interview
Woodrow Wilson when he was running for the presidency the first time, and among other questions I asked him to name his favorite poem. "I wouldn't like to define myself to just one poem, but if you will broaden your question to include the half dozen poems that I most cherish, I would put first in the list Wordsworth's Character of the Happy Warrior. I try to read that poem at least once each week, and as long as I was at Princeton I advised my students to commit it to memory," he said.

Rivalry is an important factor in human experience. Paul thought it well for us to provoke one another to good works and to love.

Rivalry with others has its helpful place, but I like to think that Wordsworth may be thinking of rivalry with one's self when he speaks of "daily self-surpass." It is when one undertakes to surpass himself or herself that greatest progress is made.

You should have married a better man," said a drunken Scot to his wife in the penitence which marked the sobering-up period. "I did, Jamie," she sadly replied. He had failed to surpass himself, and because he had been indifferent to his failures, he had slipped back.

The open pathway to a life of daily self-surpass is self-forgetful devotion to the will and service of Christ. Obey the divine laws of growth and leave the results to God. If we follow Jesus in faithful devotion to duty, we shall be daily self-surpass.

Ramspeck Aided Colleague.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, lent every encouragement to his colleague because of the hundreds of appeals he had from his constituents that Title One be restored.

As the only Georgia member of the important house committee on banking and currency, which drafted the housing bill, Representative Ramspeck was able to exert considerable influence in favor of the small home owners who, without the benefit of Title One, would have faced a loss under the terms of the new housing act.

Tribute to Larsen.

One of the finest tributes ever paid to a deceased former colleague was delivered in the house of Representatives last week by Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of Georgia's congressional delegation, on the death of W. W. Larsen Sr., for 16 years represented the 12th district of Georgia in house.

"He has now embarked on a journey from which none returns," Representative Vinson said in addressing Speaker Bankhead and his fellow house colleagues.
Friends and admirers will grieve his loss. Through 16 years he deliberately served his home in the navy, and his name was annals of our history, leaving his descendants a rich heritage a life well spent, and to his a priceless memory of a hearted comradship.

"He was a faithful, consistent representative of the those men who live and die an idea and for a principle.
nature was of such fine humanity and friendly quality no one regarded him as a stranger.
instinctively one felt the impulse to call him 'Wash.'"

"His great personality and diant optimism often helped erase what seemed to be inmountable barriers."

Praising The Constitution's tribunal on Mr. Larsen's death, son declared that "Congress
Larsen was truly of the old school of Georgia."

Vinson's Naval Plans.

Representative Vinson, being dean of his delegation chairman of the important committee on naval affairs. He summoned to the White House last week for a conference.
President Roosevelt concern our new naval program and prepared this week to report his committee one of the ambitious and far-reaching authorizations for sea power been drafted since the World War.

On his shoulders, by virtue the naval committee chairmen will fall the responsibility for funding the bill out and piloting successfully through the house the navy high command learned to lean heavily on Georgia congressman, not only the enactment of national defense measures, but in the formulation of national defense policy. At the President's opening message to congress last week he was ed to the Navy Department for series of important conferences naval building plans, and subsequently joined with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edson of the late world-famous electrical genius, and Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of navigation, in an extended White House discussion of the same subject with Mr. Roosevelt.

Out of these discussions will come the special message which the President has announced will send to congress shortly lining the new naval construction needs of our national defense.

Already Mr. Vinson has the function of giving his name to greatest naval construction passed in the peace-time history of the country—the $500,000, of Vinson naval bill enacted in early days of the Roosevelt administration.

Only Good Fortune Can Save

The Sheep If the Shepherd Is Bl

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Some years ago a man who had served without discre-etness was appointed secretary of the navy. Nothing happened to make him conspicuous until he was called before a committee of congress to testify concerning a national scandal.

It was a pathetic and shameful spectacle, for it was apparent that he knew almost nothing concerning the duties, pand responsibilities of his office. Thoughtless people laughed others bowed their heads in shame and mortification.

This incident is mentioned only to illustrate the fact that men can hold high office without their unfiness being suspended until some crisis, demanding uncommon ability, tragically exposes their want of it.

Having skilled underlings to do their routine work, the scarcely aware of their own incompetence until their blunders disaster.

The public is easily fooled: for since the first man, by right might, made himself chief of his tribe, high office has in-superior ability and people almost instinctively revere the ma-cause of the office he holds. Thus they live, in fancied seat the mercy of official weakness and stupidity.

After an official act has done harm, it is easy to point out folly of it. That kind of hindsight criticism is silly. But of-harmful things are done, in spite of ample warning, when the of-alone seems unaware of its folly.

Consider the Pacific islands, once the property of Germany.
Japan has developed as submarine bases. In case of war, would be like a knife held at America's throat. Yet they have have been ours for the asking, when they were taken from Ger-Delivering Japan to Japan was plain stupidity.

But officials are not the only ones of that caliber. V-Japan invaded Manchuria, in brazen violation of treaty pledges ultimate purpose was obvious. Our Secretary Stimson pro-vigorously and asked England to join us in

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Alfred Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, today urged high wages and a high standard of living could only come by the application of technological progress.

Sloan asserted that "if to increase wages means to increase selling prices, little is gained and perhaps more is lost. To increase wages, we must have a better, more efficient, more productive way of doing things. We must have a higher standard of living."

Question Box On the Bible

By W. L. PETTINGILL
CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.
Q. Is capital punishment disapproved in the Bible?
Ans.: No, indeed. Quite to the contrary, capital punishment is authorized by God Himself in the dispensation of human government committed to Noah and his descendants. In Gen. 9:5, according to the divine decree, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." This decree has never been abrogated or modified and still is in full force.

Fire Hurts Five; Infant Survives Toss to Street

PAULSBORO, N. J., Jan. 9.—(UP)—The only person to escape unscathed and suffering when fire destroyed Pasquale Benevento's apartment house today was 8-month-old Bertha Verdinelli, who was tossed from a second-story window.

Patrolman Don Travalline, who discovered the fire, suffered a broken nose when Joseph Verdinelli jumped on him from a second-story window ledge shortly after the policeman caught the sleeping infant Bertha. Verdinelli twisted his ankle.

Mrs. Bertha Verdinelli, 18, suffered chills and burned fingers when she slipped down a sheet to safety in her night clothing. Fire Marshal Milford Titus, directing traffic at the scene, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and contusions, when struck by an automobile.

William Morris, 24, of Paulsboro, driver of the car which struck Titus, received a three-month jail sentence for drunken driving.

Landlord Benevento had no insurance on his building, suffering loss estimated at $8,000. Little Bertha slept throughout the excitement, her mother said.

NOMINEE HILL GOES TO CAPITAL

Alabama Silent on Plans for Senate Seat.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Representative Lister Hill, nominated five days ago by Alabama Democrats for "promotion" to the senate, left for Washington today without publicly saying whether he expected to resume his house seat and await formal election April 26 or ask, even indirectly, for senatorial appointment.

Governor Bibb Graves, who said in the national capital last week he would appoint Hill "as soon as he's ready," was scheduled to leave for Montgomery today, executive mansion servants said.

The Governor said his wife, Dixie, who has been serving tea daily since elevation of Hugo L. Black to the supreme court, would resign as soon as Hill notifies the chief executive "he's ready."

MISSING WOMAN SOUGHT BY BLIMP

Ship Cruises Over Edge of Everglades.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A blimp cruised slowly over the eastern edge of the Everglades today while a searching party aboard it sought some clue to the disappearance of attractive Frances Browning.

Special State Investigator Stuart K. Smith said the search was fruitless. The area covered included the section where the battered and burned body of the woman's husband, Frank L. Browning, 31, was discovered Thursday.

Mentime two deputies, I. R. Mills and R. A. Martens, were in Tampa armed with a warrant charging George Ryals with murder in connection with the slaying of Browning. Ryals, declaring himself innocent, surrendered to the Sheriff in Brooksville last night and was taken to Tampa.

Nate S. Noble, managing editor of The Constitution, will speak at 7 o'clock tonight before members of the Alpha Eta chapter of the Xi Psi fraternity at the Atlanta Southern Dental College at the chapter house on Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E.

Mr. Noble will speak on "The Usual and the Unusual in a Newsroom."

STAKELY SERVICES TO BE HELD TODAY

Burial for Commercial High Teacher Will Be in College Park Cemetery.

Funeral services for Miss Sallie Stakely, veteran teacher at Commercial High school and member of a well-known College Park family, killed Saturday morning when struck by a train, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the College Park Presbyterian church.

The Rev. Thomas E. Hill, who had been her pastor for many years, will officiate.

Miss Stakely was one of the best-known instructors at Commercial High, having taught Spanish for 22 years. She was the sister of H. C. Stakely, of College Park, retired electrical engineer.

She taught a Sunday school class at the College Park Presbyterian church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock today at Spring Hill, with Dean Raimundo de Ovies officiating. Burial will follow in West View cemetery.

HEAVY SNOWFALL COVERS MIDWEST

Five-Inch Mantle Is Predicted for Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Swirling eastward, snow covered most of the Midwest today in the heaviest fall of the winter for many sections.

Motor traffic was hampered by slippery roads and poor visibility in the dense storm.

In Chicago a five-inch fall was forecast. Air traffic, halted early in the day, was resumed this afternoon after the storm subsided. Railroads reported operations on schedule.

Nazis Designate What Germans Can Eat in 1938

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Potatoes, fish and ham today were designated as the principal items of diet for Germans this year by a food ministry broadcast.

These foods largely will replace bread, butter and other meats which housewives were ordered to use still more sparingly.

Eggs, too, would be scarce, the announcement said, and the people must depend more on the regular products of German soil such as turnips, apples and curd cheese.

Professor Hans Reiter, president of the Federal Health Board, in an official order urged also that the people be weaned from liquor and tobacco by drastic restrictions. Imports of these commodities cost the country 148,000,000 marks (about $69,644,000) in foreign currencies in 1937.

BENNETT GIRL, MATE BACK HOME

Elopement of Couple Had Caused Kidnap Fears.

YPSILANTI, Mich., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two young lovers whose elopement stirred kidnap fears and then a far-flung police hunt came quietly home today from Tampa, Florida.

Fond parents received Gertrude (Trudie) Bennett, 17, daughter of Harry Bennett, of the Ford Motor Company, and Russell Hughes, 21-year-old dance orchestra drummer.

The couple, both Michigan State Normal College students, ran off to be wed last Monday night, and before their intentions had become known, the state police and federal agents had been called in to investigate.

DO COW-PUNCHERS APPRECIATE CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS?

TED YOCHUM was born and raised in the cattle country. Speaking from personal observation, Ted says: "Cow-punchers are great Camel smokers. Any hombre who's ridin' herd has a natural hankering for the kind of mild, tasty smokin' Camels give him. And seems like if a man smokes Camels once—he sticks to Camels. Me—I've been enjoying Camels for nigh on to eight years. Come round-up time—I'm in the saddle for hours, and not spar'ing myself. A Camel sure hits the spot then. I get a mighty pleasant 'lift.'"

Yes, and to America at large, Camel's costlier tobaccos have such a special appeal that they are the largest-selling cigarette in this country!

AUTO MECHANIC Al Patterson: "In the garage business you catch your meals on the run. Camels smooth the way for good digestion. The Mrs. smokes 'em too."

SALESGIRL Elsie Schumacher works in a department store. She says: "When the rush gets me to feeling worn out—it's me for a Camel, and I get a quick, pleasant 'lift.'"

PHARMACIST J. E. Bayus says: "I think Camels are a simply swell cigarette. I get in a lot of Camel smoking during the course of a day. I never tire of Camel's taste."

CHIEF SIGNALMAN, N. Y. Central, John Geraghty: "Speed and safety—our watchwords—call for healthy nerves. I smoke plenty. Camels don't jangle my nerves."

PERSONAL SHOPPER Irene Sherwood says: "Every woman knows how hectic shopping is. I'm up against that six days a week. When I'm fatigued, I light up a Camel."

WATCHMAKER I. C. Gorkun says: "Every Camel I smoke seems to be milder and tastier than the last. Camels don't leave me 'smoked out' no matter how many times a day I light up."

CHAMPION TYPIST Remo Poulsen: "I enjoy Camels from one end of the day to the other. And Camels don't irritate my throat. That means a lot because I smoke a lot."

SPORTS WRITER Stuart Cameron: "I know many of America's great athletes intimately. It's impressive how the champions agree on Camels. Camels don't get on my nerves."

Camel spends MILLIONS MORE FOR COSTLIER TOBACCOS! Camels are a matchless blend of finer—MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

Whether in U. S. or Denmark, Hunters' Tales Are All Alike

ELSINORE, Denmark.—(By Mail to United States.)—We were on the way to the village of Gundsomagle to visit a man on a farm there, and when we went in and coffee was passed, I fell to admiring a stuffed pheasant which was mounted and occupying a position of honor in the room.

"There is quite a story about that pheasant," said the farmer, as he poured more coffee and passed the sweet cakes. "I would say, quite a story. I don't know how your American hunting stories go," he said, "but this one is a true one."

"I will be glad to hear a true hunting story," I said, "because in America the hunting men are very fine gentlemen but most amazing liars when it comes to stories about their hunting dogs and their own ability to handle them."

"Oh," he said, "that is too bad. I am distressed to learn that a hunter would exaggerate the truth."

"They don't exaggerate it," I said, "they just ignore it."

"Well," he said, "maybe you would like to see my dogs before I tell the story of the pheasant."

"I would, indeed."

So, we went out into the cold and into the court yard of the farm. The buildings are 100 years old. They are of stone and they are white-washed every six months and they look very neat and attractive.

His dogs sleep under the barn in a kennel there and he whistled them out. There were two setters and some cocker spaniels which he uses as retrievers. We admired the dogs and went back into the house. His wife poured some more coffee. The Danes stop whatever they are doing and have coffee at intervals of about every 10 minutes during the day and the early part of the night. So, when we had the second cup, or the fourth one within 20 minutes, I asked:

"What about the pheasant?"

"Oh, yes," he said. "The pheasant. I really perhaps had best not tell this story since you have had so many hunting stories in your own country."

"It will be a relief to hear a true one. After years of listening to fellows like Trammell Scott and Charlie Jordan and members of the Southern Field Trial Club, it will be a pleasure to hear a true story. I will take it back with me and tell it to them. In fact, a true one will be worth a cable."

"You see this pheasant?"

He poured another cup of coffee and got up. "You see this pheasant," he said, walking to the stuffed bird and pointing to a spot on its back. "That's a curious black spot there and that's part of the story."

"We don't have so many pheasants in this part of the country. It's pretty well farmed and there isn't much cover. But we have some cover and there are a few of the pheasants. The big hunters have beaters but I just go out with my dogs. Those bird dogs range in close and act as my beaters."

"We had been out this day and we hadn't seen a pheasant. It was cold and getting late."

"That," I said, "starts off just like one of the stories I hear at the field trial clubs."

"Well," he said, "you already have explained about them. This one is just as it happened. Holger there is my best dog. He is what we call the dinner dog."

"The dinner dog?"

"Yes, he is the dog that always finds something for dinner."

"Oh," I said, "over our way we call them meat dogs."

"Meat dogs?"

"Yes, it's a way of saying they always find the meat."

"I see."

"But what about Holger?"

"Oh yes, well, it was getting late and I had despaired of getting a pheasant when Holger here flushed up the very pheasant you see there on the table."

"Oh, and you killed him and stuffed him because of the odd spot?"

"Well, that's the story. You see, when he got away, my dog Holger he looked at me with a quick look and he went on toward where the pheasant had flown into some woods. I followed him and he got up the pheasant again. Is it very difficult to shoot in the woods in your country when it is getting dark and there are shadows?"

"It is," I said.

"Then you understand," he said.

"Quite," I said. "But, how about the pheasant?"

"Well, after I missed that last time the dog followed him and I lost sight of the dog. You understand it was nearly dark?"

"Yes."

"Well," said the Dane, "I whistled and called that dog but he didn't answer me. I waited there long after it was dark and then, at last, with deep regret, I went home. I expected the dog to return home and I waited late but he did not come. And the next morning he still was not there."

He poured some more coffee and passed the sweet cakes.

"How about that pheasant?"

"Well, Holger didn't come home for a long, long time."

"Late the next day, eh?"

"Later than that."

"Got caught in some wire, I guess. That happens in America. The wire fences are bad."

"It wasn't a fence," he said. "It was a year before Holger came home."

"A year?" I sat up and put down my coffee cup. "A year?"

"Aye," he said. "A year. It was a full year later. I heard a scratching at the door early one morning. I got up and there was Holger. I was overjoyed to see him. I called him in but he wouldn't come. He ran in once and naved at my gun and ran out again. So, I pulled on some clothes and took the gun and went out after Holger."

"Don't tell me—"

"You'll never guess," he said. "He led me straight

GROUP CONVENES IN ATHENS TODAY TO REVEAL STAFF

Butts, Whitworth and Lampe Seen as New Members.

By JACK TROY.
Barring upsets—and what a year it has been for upsets—Joel Hunt will officially be named head coach of the University of Georgia, succeeding Harry Mehre, when the governing board and subcommittee meet to compare notes at Athens late this afternoon.

Deil Morgan ran a strong race until a question of assistants seemingly put him out of the running. Morgan insisted on naming two of his own, holding that the right assistants are most important to the success of the head coach.

Morgan told The Constitution Sunday he was out of it and added, "I will see you in the spring." He will continue as line coach and coach of the baseball team at Auburn.

Offered the job of line coach at Georgia, under Hunt, Morgan refused. He was unwilling to leave Auburn to accept another assistant's job.

As far as news is concerned, it is expected that official announcement of Georgia officials will reveal little that the reading public doesn't already know.

Wally Butts, former Mercer end who played with Phoney Smith, is considered a certainty as line coach under the 31-year-old Hunt, who formerly has coached the backfield at L. S. U. "Ears" Whitworth, apparently is Hunt's choice from L. S. U. as one of his assistants. Whitworth, former Alabama star, coached the freshmen at Old Lou and did the major part of the scouting. He covered as many as two games many a week end by traveling by airplane.

CAGE COACH.
Elmer Lampe, for years coach at Carroll College and formerly a star end for Chicago, fits definitely into the picture as coach of basketball and a member of the physical education department. He may coach the ends under the new regime.

It is figured, too, that Lampe will, in time, become athletic director at Georgia.

Graham Batchelor, who has had much success at G. M. C., comes into the picture as one of the assistants, it seems.

Howell Hollis may be the only football man retained from the old regime. He is slated to coach the freshman team. Weems Baskin, of the old regime, may confine his talents exclusively to coaching the track team, aided by Spec Towne.

Decision of the subcommittee of five men and the governing board of 19 men is expected to be accepted without question by Georgia alumni, who have left the matter of a coaching set-up entirely in their capable hands.

MANY INTERVIEWS.
The selection committee has worked deliberately and with great care in the matter of choosing the most desirable personnel. Each candidate was interviewed many, many times.

The meeting at Athens is scheduled for 5 o'clock this afternoon and announcement of the new coaching regime is expected to be forthcoming relatively soon thereafter.

It is expected that the governing board will accept the decisions of the subcommittee of five without question.

Brown's Rival Will Arrive Today

Eddie Polo, the classy New York middleweight who will try to lower the colors of Ben Brown before the Atlanta boy's home town, will arrive in the city today and work out in daily public sessions.

Jim Downing, recently of Tampa, Fla., and one of the best known boxing promoters in the country, is staging his first show Friday night at the new Warren arena and plans a series of topnotch programs which will be able to offer consistently.

Brown is due in Tuesday from Miami, where he has become a heroic figure in view of many fine performances. The Atlanta beller was recently rated fifth middleweight in the world by the National Boxing Association and his services are very much in demand. He is billed for a title fight in Miami this winter and Downing intimates that if Blasting Ben can weather the tough list of opponents he will bring here against him, he'll stage Atlanta's first championship match with Brown as one of the principals.

Eddie Polo looms as Ben's toughest foe in Atlanta. He has fought the best of them including Ken Overlin, one of the few scrappers ever to vanquish Brown, and Babe Risko, former champion. Supporting matches are being arranged.

PLAY 'GATORS TONIGHT.

DELAND, Fla., Jan. 9.—(P)—Stetson University's basketball team will play its first state foe tomorrow night at Gainesville when it meets the University of Florida.

J. P. C. DEFEATS NEHI REDS, 63-31

Progressives Show Form in Taking Sixth Victory of Season.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Nehi's Reds were the sixth victim of the J. P. C. basketball brigade as the Progressives played a consistent ball game throughout to win, 63 to 31, last night at the Progressives' court on Pryor street.

Browdy and Minsk, recovered from injuries which hampered their play last week, played head-up ball to lead the Progressive team, although every member of the squad showed up well—so well, in fact, that it would be difficult to point out any man as the star of the game.

Carlton Lewis, Nehi forward, lived up to advance reports, exhibiting uncanny ability to score on one-handed shots by pivoting around his man. He totaled 16 points. Tobe Kirkland, Nehi's highly-touted center, however, was held down to five points by good guarding on the part of Browdy.

The Progressives played one of their best games of the season, passing the ball around accurately until some member was in scoring position. They worked the ball in for crisp shots, breaking through Nehi's defense time and again, although not without difficulty.

As usual Steve Browdy, elongated center for the J. P. C. team, was high scorer with 19 points. Steve did not get a field goal in the first half but made six foul shots. Lewis, Nehi, was second with 16, but every other member of the J. P. C. starting lineup came ahead the second Nehi scorer, Jones, forward, who made six points. Morris Katz, J. P. C. forward, scored 11. Minsk and Greenberg, guards, totaled 10 each, and Ginsberg, forward, came in with eight points.

The J. P. C. varsity will play Peerless Mills, of Chattanooga, next Wednesday night, and will play an exhibition game with the Celtics Monday night week at the Warren arena.

Tech's Only Home Tilt This Week With Vandy

Georgia Tech's next appearance on the home court will be against Vanderbilt Saturday night at the naval armory.

There was some mistake about that Auburn game Wednesday, it seems. Coach Roy Munday offered Auburn a game but if it is played it will be at Auburn. Coach Munday hasn't heard from the Tigers as yet.

The Jacket coach doesn't like the rule eliminating the center jump. He believes it robs the game of something. Then, too, it doesn't speed it up since the contending teams can control the pace to suit their liking. It really provides an opportunity to stall, if a team cares to do so.

It's really a useless thing—and may not last.

"What we really need is reserves," Coach Munday said yesterday. "I thought the boys did very well in the opener against State. They decided to coast when they had that big lead, of course, and it may have taught them something."

19 FOURSOMES IN EAST LAKE MEET

Nineteen foursomes participated in the weekly dogfight tournament Sunday afternoon on the East Lake course. It was the second largest crowd to play there in the history of the course. The winning foursome had a score of 117. They were J. H. Starr, George Fogg, L. E. Mock and George Hiles.

Second with a score of 118 were K. A. Stephenson, F. R. Somers, J. C. Shumate and P. F. O'Brien. Pete Barnes, W. D. Tumlin, Ben Parham and K. P. Wood were next in line with a score of 119.

Dr. H. P. McDonald, Dr. Ed Balenger, Jesse Draper and J. S. Black.

Three foursomes tied for fifth place with a score of 121. They were P. G. Lombard, Jack Robertson, Dr. J. C. Wright, Bob Singletary, L. A. Scott, Robert Ingram, Hugh Burgess, Cliff McGaughey and A. N. Anderson, R. P. Frazier, S. W. Rade and H. L. Ralls.

Four foursomes tied with a score of 122. They were A. P. McElroy, H. J. Gerlach, O. E. Pruitt, J. B. Stewart, Keith Conway, G. B. Sisson, W. P. Branch, George Suggs, J. C. Kyle, W. F. Ison, W. D. Owen, George Elliott, Dr. B.

Maybe Clark Griffith Has Relief on His Mind

Dutch Leonard's Record Entirely Too Good To Be Secondary Hurler at Washington.

By JACK TROY.
If it develops they have an old fox hunt around Washington, D. C., before the baseball season is over, and Clark Griffith finds he is fanning the breeze with the hounds in full chase, he can blame only himself.

Because Clark Griffith, known for many years as the "Old Fox," keeps on insisting he is going to use Emil Leonard, Atlanta's Flying Dutchman of the past two seasons, in a relief role.

Graciously the Old Fox has moved Leonard's name to the top of the relief pitchers' list. He was quoted as being very enthusiastic over the possibilities in a recent story.

The question Southern league baseball men and fans would like answered, however, is—what regular pitchers does Griffith have who have anything at all on Leonard?

It may be true, as Griffith says, that Washington has sorely needed good relief pitching in the past, but why pick on Leonard, who for two seasons was the best pitcher in the Southern league?

MANAGERS' PITCHER.
Leonard's record for 1937 didn't show he was the best because he missed so much time because of kidney stones. But he finished with a fine mark and leading managers of the league unanimously picked him as the top pitcher from the standpoint of ability.

No one who ever had occasion to see Leonard pitch several games for the Crackers ever understood, anyway, why he failed to stay in the majors in the first place.

Brooklyn shunted him around. And, goodness knows, Brooklyn had few pitchers who were worthy of carrying Leonard's suitcase.

DOC WANTED HIM.
Doc Prothro thought so much of Leonard in 1937 that Doc wanted to draft him when Little Rock finally beat out the Crackers in the playoff and use the Flying Dutchman in the Dixie Series against Fort Worth.

All this talk of relief certainly won't help Leonard's mental attitude anyway.

Maybe here's an angle, Griffith,

On Relief?

DUTCH LEONARD

living so close to the White House as he does, may just have relief on his mind. He may not mean what he says.

Leonard on relief—it simply doesn't add up. And it is to be hoped when Clark Griffith reaches the Nats' training camp in the sunny south this spring, he will be of a mind to give the big fellow a full-time pitching job.

Griffith certainly has everything to gain and nothing to lose—if Washington's showing of the past few seasons is to be taken as a criterion.

ATLANTAN PU ON GREAT RAL TO WIN TOURN

Bitsy Wins 20 Straight Points Due To Cran in Riggs's Leg.

By LARRY ROLLINS.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 9.—(P)—Bryan M. Grant, Atlanta's own, who makes a of embarrassing the tennis did it again today as he to Bobby Riggs, the nation's player, in five bitterly cont sets to win the Miami Biltmore tournament for the third time. Grant, ranked fourth nation came from behind to cor Riggs, 3-6, 6-2, 7-3, 8-6, 6-3, earn permanent possession of Colonel Henry L. Doherty trophy. The Atlantian downed Don B national champion, in last 3 finals, after winning the tournament from Berkeley B Riggs, after suffering a c in his left leg late in the set, dropped 20 consecutive y in the deciding frame, but he nothing but praise for his ditive foe.

BEST ON CLAY.

"Despite the fact I am nat clay courts champion," he "Grant is still the best in world on clay."

Grant, a veteran at 27, lited the 20-year-old C goan, whom he has called "thinkingest" player in the g. So weary in the fourth set he cried: "I'm so tired!" G pulled himself together and on to win. Bitsy, exhausted the end, collapsed on the after the final point.

Bitsy chop-stroked his wa victory. Time and again he over a spinning ball that bit the clay and prevented Riggs f putting any steam behind his ground-stroke returns. The of the time Grant was cor to play his usual soft-ball g lobbing the ball over again again until Bobby committed error. As in all Grant mato there were numerous prol rallies, on one occasion the traveling across the net 55 ft by actual count.

Warren Sandlotters Win Last Game, 26-

Warren Bulldogs, southern sand lot champions of 1936 and 37, won their final game of the season Sunday on Cherokee field, defeating the Grove Park All-Stars, 26 to 0.

Fair, Hammette and Page stood out in the Bulldog backfield and Sears, Little and Puckett were the best linemen.

This was Warren's 17th win and their points to over 300 for the season against one touchdown for their opponents.

AUSTRIA, HUNGARY MAY BE REQUESTED TO JOIN ANTI-REDS

New Alignment in Central Europe Feared as 'Danube Bloc' Meets.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Reports that Italy may try to draw Austria and Hungary into the Italo-German-Japanese anti-Communist pact tonight aroused fears that tomorrow's meeting of the so-called "Danube bloc" in Budapest may be an opening wedge for a new alignment in central Europe.

Representatives of Italy, Hungary and Austria will meet ostensibly to discuss the "Rome protocol," an economic agreement which Premier Mussolini fostered two years ago to consolidate Italian relations in the Danube basin.

In addition to the apparent intention to discuss revision of the protocol, at least two other results were foreseen:

1. An effort of Adolf Hitler to join the Danube powers as a partner in the Rome protocol, thus tightening the Rome-Berlin hegemony in central Europe.

2. A proposal which Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, is expected to make to Hungary and Austria, suggesting they join the anti-Comintern pact.

Either of these events would be calculated to increase the nervousness of London and Paris. France, in particular, is watching the Danube meeting warily, since the increase of Italian-German influence in eastern Europe would be coincident with a decrease in French influence.

ALABAMA KILLED.

Urns Are Dedicated to Founders Of Business Women's Organization

Tribute Is Paid the Late Mrs. F. J. Paxon and the Late Dr. John E. White in Memorial Services at Second-Ponce de Leon Church.

Silver urns were dedicated yesterday at the Second-Ponce de Leon church by the Business Women's League as a memorial to the late Mrs. F. J. Paxon and the late Dr. John E. White, founders of the organization.

Dr. Henry Alford Porter, of Charlottesville, Va., former pastor of the Second Baptist church, delivered the dedicatory address, paying tribute to the untiring efforts of Dr. White, then pastor of the Second church, and of Mrs. Paxon in establishing the Business Women's League in 1913.

Mrs. Paxon was described as the "daily bread to the league in her incessant and self-sacrificing activity, her ceaseless personal ministry, and her unflinching perseverance. She was star dust in her kindling faith and love and enthusiasm," Dr. Porter said.

And speaking of Dr. White, Dr. Porter said, "John was a pillar in the temple of our God... He could be a son of thunder. He was a dynamic force in the civic life of this community... John's personality was not one-sided. He had beauty as well as strength. There was something of the poet in him and his pamphlet on Sidney Lanier remains one of the best interpretations of that southern poet."

"In the romance of my life as pastor of the Second Baptist church, the work of the Business Women's League was to me, and I am sure to Dr. Knight, a fountain of perennial joy and thanksgiving and inspiration. In the quarter-century of its existence it has gathered under its aegis many hundreds of businesswomen who have filled the Second church, and the Second-Ponce de Leon, with the fragrance of their personal service, contributed almost astronomical figures to multitudinous objects of beneficence, and sent forth waves of influence that set in motion similar work in scores of churches of our own and other denominations in Atlanta and throughout the south."

Presentation of the silver urns was made by Colonel F. J. Paxon and acceptance was acknowledged by Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor.

Formation of the league was suggested by Dr. White and Mrs. Paxon was the organizer.

PLANE HUNT ENDS

U. S. Naval Ships To Resume Routine Duties.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The four-day search by the United States navy for a giant patrol plane which vanished with seven men aboard came to a temporary end tonight.

There was no official announcement as to whether the hunt would be continued.

Navy ships and aircraft quit the search and were ready for resumption of routine duties. Admiral A. J. Heppner, commander-in-chief of the fleet, returned to port today on the flagship Pennsylvania and the aircraft carriers Saratoga and Lexington came in with the other warships which are engaged in the hunt.

M. EDWARD GILL DIES IN WOODBURY HOME

M. Edward Gill, 65, a farmer of Woodbury, Ga., died unexpectedly at his home there yesterday afternoon following a short illness.

Survivors are one son, Douglas Gill, of Woodbury; two daughters, Mrs. W. Blake and Miss Frances Gill, both of Tampa, Fla.; three sisters, Miss Eva Gill and Mrs. Lena Carroll, both of Woodbury, and four brothers, W. P. and W. H. Gill, of Woodbury; J. N. Gill, of Atlanta, and H. B. Gill, of Wilcox, Ga.

Funeral services will be announced later.

AUTO-TRAIN WRECKS KILL 8 AND HURT 6

Passenger Locomotive Plows Through Bus; Doubleheader Smashes Car.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two railroad crossing accidents brought death to eight persons and injury to six others in Indiana today.

A Pennsylvania passenger train plowed through a city bus at Anderson. Four of the 10 persons on the bus were killed outright. The other six were hurt, two critically.

A "doubleheader" Big Four train killed four Hamilton (Ohio) persons at Waldron, near Shelbyville. The party was watching a funeral procession on another road, witnesses said, and apparently did not notice the train or flasher warning signals.

94 LIVES ARE LOST IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

By The Associated Press.

Traffic accidents on the nation's streets and highways exacted a toll of at least 94 lives over the week end.

The list by states: Arkansas, 1; Arizona, 4; California, 3; Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 3; Florida, 7; Georgia, 3; Illinois, 7; Indiana, 11; Iowa, 1; Kentucky, 1; Michigan, 9; Minnesota, 2; Missouri, 2; New Jersey, 4; New Mexico, 1; New York, 3; North Carolina, 2; North Dakota, 2; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 9; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 11; Washington, 1; Wisconsin, 3; and West Virginia, 1.

TURKS PLAN FUNDS FOR MORE PLANES

ANKARA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Turkish cabinet in special session today approved a bill asking a $35,000,000 additional appropriation for rearmament.

The chief of the general staff said the money particularly was needed to build up the air force in view of "the present obscure international situation."

New 'Alcatraz' Proposed to House Hard-Boiled 'Gang Moll' Convicts

Construction of Strong Prison for Incurable Women Advocated by Cummings, J. Edgar Hoover, and Federal Prison Director Bennett.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The federal government proposes to build "another Alcatraz" for hard-boiled women convicts.

Details have not been disclosed, but informed persons indicated today that the institution probably would be located in eastern Kentucky, eastern Texas, or at Bragg, Okla., where officials already have inspected tentative sites.

The government already has a prison for "incurable" men convicts at Alcatraz island, in San Francisco bay.

In his recent budget message to congress, President Roosevelt recommended appropriation of $1,500,000 to start construction of three new penal institutions. One of these will be exclusively for women department officials said.

Construction of a strong prison for incurable gang "molls" is advocated by Attorney General

Cummings, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the "G-men," and Director James V. Bennett, of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

However, Bennett told Attorney General Cummings last week that the population in the industrial reformatory for women at Alderson had exceeded its capacity of 500 for more than a year.

He added arrangements had been made with New Jersey, Michigan, Minnesota and Tennessee authorities to lodge women law-breakers in state prisons, but that it was "practically" how long the arrangements could be continued. Approximately 200 women are housed in state institutions, the majority in Cincinnati work-house, although technically they are federal prisoners.

LEGIONNAIRES HOLD FORSYTH MEETING

Delegates Vote War on Social Diseases.

FORSYTH, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Legionnaires from the fourth and sixth districts met today for a service officers school conducted under the direction of Arthur Cheatham, assistant director of the veterans' service office in Atlanta.

The delegation, about 150 persons from 17 posts in the two districts, voted to engage in the fight against social diseases, tumor and cancer.

Cheatham announced a statewide meeting of post officers to be held at Macon Sunday.

Speakers included John M. Slaton Jr., manager of the veterans' regional office, Atlanta, and Quimby Wilson, Griffin, national committee member on the Legion rehabilitation committee.

DICTATORS SEEN

Method To Combat Fascism Predicted by Fossdick.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. Harry Emerson Fossdick expressed fear today that world's democracies will ultimately feel compelled to adopt totalitarian methods to successfully combat Fascism.

In his sermon at Riverside church, the internationally known preacher said:

"A possibility is that the democracies will see the success of dictatorships, the swift results that can be gotten by the short cut of state regimentation, and will first envy it, then half-consciously imitate it, then reluctantly feel the necessity of fighting fire with fire, until at last, totalitarian methods, like poison gas, will be used by all."

KNOX AGAIN TO PLEAD REPUBLICAN CAUSE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and Republican candidate for vice president in 1936, will make his first public political address since the national campaign a week from Tuesday night as guest speaker of the National League of Republican Clubs.

His address, broadcast nationally, will have as its topic: "Make the Republican party again the Party of the Plain People."

OFFICE B. PATTERSON, OF MAYSVILLE, DIES

Office B. Patterson, about 40, of Maysville, Ga., died at noon yesterday in a private sanitarium here after an extended illness.

The body of Mr. Patterson will be taken to Maysville at 1:30 o'clock today by Brandon-Bond-Condon for funeral service and burial.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Misses Dorothy and Kathryn Patterson, and two sons, Rhuel and Otis B. Patterson Jr., all of Maysville.

Man Answers Ad--- 35 Years Too Late

BATESVILLE, Ark., Jan. 9.—(UP)—A farmer living 12 miles from here came to town to enter the "pea guessing" contest which he claimed he saw advertised in the paper. First prize in the contest was a buggy. But the rustic arrived too late, the contest was over. On a second glance at the paper he noticed the date—1903.

Mrs. Morgenthau, Wife of Secretary, Active in Social Welfare

The Cabinet Wives

With the opening of congress and the Washington social season, the activities of the wives of members of President Roosevelt's cabinet take on special interest. The part played by these women in the advancement of their husbands' careers and in the leadership of capital society is told here in a series of eight articles, of which this is the second.

By PAULINE FREDERICK.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—If you have an idea that the job of the secretary of the treasury consists solely in the balancing of one heavy column of figures against another, Mrs. Elinor Morgenthau, wife of that cabinet official, can give you a new slant on the subject.

She did that very thing just the other day, sitting in the library on the first floor of the comfortable red brick house just off Massachusetts avenue. A cold winter dusk had fallen. The Venetian blinds were drawn against it, and the lamps spread orbs of gold light over the chintz-covered chairs and wine-colored rug. Vases of winter berries and chrysanthemums held shadows of red, yellow and rust. The cabinet hostess wore a green crepe blouse made on simple lines, and a black wool skirt. The soft light falling on her dark bobbed hair, combed away from her face, showed traces of gray. The conversation had turned to Mrs. Morgenthau's part in helping her husband carry his burden of office. In a modulated voice, her deep-set eyes dark and serious, she was explaining:

"When you have to raise money for many things, you have to know something about those things themselves—housing, slum clearance, public health. . . . Since the man who today keeps the keys to Uncle Sam's safe must also keep abreast of such social welfare subjects, Mrs. Morgenthau went on, he is always conferring with many people with widely diverging interests.

And because she has made it her business to keep up with her husband's career, and especially the human side of it, Mrs. Morgenthau sits in on many of these conferences as an "unofficial observer." And when she can, she gathers information from outside sources concerning the social undertakings that the treasury must finance.

Mrs. Morgenthau's sympathetic interest in the cause of human betterment reaches back many years. It probably had its origin in New York's Henry street settlement. There, for two summers, the man whom she was later to marry lived and organized boys' clubs, and she followed closely every phase of his work.

Today, her latest social interest is the Washington Self-Help Exchange. From a tea in their home, at which Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau introduced the idea for such a project to a group of interested persons less than a year ago, there has grown an institution where 75 needy men and women of all ages are finding a chance to do some kind of work for things they must have. The exchange of services for goods is effected through trips.

In addition to this practical venture in social service, Mrs. Morgenthau takes an active part in the Instructive Visiting Nurses' Association.

But the Morgenthau have other mutual interests besides social welfare. Perhaps their first was a certain sidewalk in New York where they once took their daily promenades in their respective perambulators, and later played together.

Then college separated them. She went to Vassar to specialize in the drama, while he went to Cornell to study agriculture. She was back in New York again, producing and acting in children's plays at the neighborhood playhouse and children's educational theater when the young Cornell graduate came along and interrupted her career. He induced her to "move to the country" as Mrs. Henry Morgenthau.

"The country" consisted of a farm at Fishkill in Dutchess county. The groom introduced his bride to some close friends of his family who lived at Hyde Park, 22 miles away. Thus were begun the friendships that were eventually to bring the Morgenthau to Washington as "neighbors" to the Franklin D. Roosevelts.

Actually, the two "farmers' wives" didn't really get to know each other intimately until politics brought them side by side into the New York campaign of 1924. Then they worked in the Democratic state headquarters in New York city. Mrs. Morgenthau running the women's and junior political clubs.

Today, Mrs. Morgenthau and Mrs. Roosevelt are the closest of friends, and were it possible for official life to shut out all other personal contact, they still would manage somehow one event together—that annual pilgrimage to Cornell in February for home and farm week.

Mrs. Morgenthau's wit helps to flavor Mrs. Roosevelt's annual stunt party for the "Gridiron Widows." Both Mrs. and Mrs. Morgenthau like to do the Virginia reel in the east room of the White House, with the President calling the figures.

Thus, part of the joys of being a cabinet hostess for Mrs. Morgenthau is that she can keep up her personal contacts with her Dutchess county friends. Another chief delight in connection with her role, she said with genuine sincerity, "is the opportunity I have of meeting so many types of people with so many different interests, especially the members of the diplomatic corps."

But she who would get the most out of the crowded official hours in Washington must "get away" from it frequently, according to Mrs. Morgenthau. Her principal refuge is that same farm where she went as a bride, and late into the winter she goes there each week end. The secretary joins her by plane, but there is not always rest for him, for he occasionally takes treasury officials with him for conferences and work.

There is for the Morgenthaus, however, one continual source of diversion from political life. It is the children. Within the home circle there are three interesting young members, two boys and a girl.

Henry III, a junior at Princeton, is studying music and art—not unusual for the son of a mother who has played the violin and who today has an unofficial but influential role in obtaining some of the best art—murals, paintings and sculptures—for public buildings.

Robert Morris, the second son, is a sophomore at Amherst. Later on, he hopes to study law.

Joan, the only daughter, is at Miss Madeira's school in Washington. At present, she is "principally interested in horses and dogs," to quote her mother.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.
Hot Frankfurter and Potato
Salad Casserole
Apple Sauce Fruit Cake
Coffee

How is this menu for a Sunday night supper, or a supper at any time when appetites are sharpened by cold weather? The casserole dish is from Good Housekeeping magazine.

Today's Recipes.
Hot frankfurter and potato salad casserole: Six cups thinly sliced cooked potatoes, two and one-fourth teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half cup salad or olive oil, one-fourth cup vinegar, one No. 2 can (two and one-half cups) string beans, one-fourth cup sliced onions, six frankfurters. Combine the potatoes, salt, pepper, oil and vinegar. Arrange the drained string beans in the bottom of a two-quart covered casserole. Over them arrange the potato salad in alternate layers with the onions and sliced frankfurters. (Cook the latter for five minutes before using.) Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven of 400 degrees Fahrenheit for 35 to 40 minutes. Serves six. To serve two or three make half this recipe.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Stuffings.
The kind of stuffing to use with meats depends on personal preference. With pork, it is a good idea to choose one which is not too rich, letting the pork itself supply the delicious flavor. For this reason, an apple stuffing is a favorite, because the apples lend the right amount of fat to make the whole dish enjoyed. With veal, a meat which contains little fat, the richer dressings may be used.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday.—I enjoyed the dinner to the Vice President last night even though my partner on my left said such kind things to me that I began to worry about being able to keep my head.

I had a delightful time with the Vice President talking about the rural arts exhibit. I was glad to have Senator La Follette uphold me in my statement, that it was really well worth a visit and that all those who missed seeing it must look forward to advising the secretary of agriculture to hold another next year.

The Vice President grows lyrical on the subject of nature, trees, fields and animals. He wants rural life made so attractive that boys brought up in the city will long for the opportunity to make their lives in a rural district. I agree with him wholeheartedly but I think we must have greater development along the lines which the rural arts exhibit pointed out.

In talking to Dr. Latham Hatcher and the two young people with whom she was broadcasting today, I was interested in her statement that not more than one-quarter of the young people born in rural districts could make an adequate living purely out of agriculture. The cities, she said, would need a certain percentage of rural youth to build up their constantly decreasing population. At least another quarter of the young people living in the country will have to combine farming or gardening with some other occupation to earn an adequate livelihood.

The statement has also been made that agriculture as a profession, as well as a way of life, has not been adequately studied from the point of view of the training of youth. I think this is absolutely true and I hope it means we are going to study our rural education and a great many other phases of rural life far more carefully than we have in the past.

After dinner last night we enjoyed a delightful concert. Mr. Percy Grainger, at the piano, played many of my favorites—especially Brahms' "Tragic Song" arranged by Mr. Grainger. Madame Elizabeth Schuman sang beautifully. The President and Vice President seemed particularly appreciative of some of her songs.

There has just appeared on my desk a most delightful book of songs, "Sing a Song of Safety," by Irving Caesar. It has been accepted in the public schools of Greater New York, I believe, for use by the children. I hope it will be used so constantly that the children of this generation will think of it as we think of many of our nursery rhymes. It covers many of the childish activities that may lead to danger. I think this is a way in which a difficult lesson may be easily learned and remembered.

Your Waistline, Sir!

BUSINESSMAN NEEDS TO PLAY FOR EXERCISE

It may come as a shock to you businessmen, but most of you do not know how to play, and won't learn. That is the expert opinion of Dr. Jesse Feiring Williams, professor of physical education at Columbia University, who goes on to say that the average businessman is not too old to learn to play—but too proud!

Many of our self-made captains of industry had little time for games in their youth and now they simply refuse to be placed in the undignified position of the beginner.

There are, of course, some of you who realize that you need exercise, so at noon, or in the evening, you office athletes go to a gymnasium for a 15-minute workout. And that, Dr. Williams declares, is the most absurd of all! He adds: "The sedentary worker is subjected to tension all day and the blood is kept in the brain center for many hours at a time. Now, what these men need is an activity which will drain those centers, release the tension, and send the blood into the muscles and skin for several hours at a time."

Another mistaken idea of exercise is to stand before an open window, square off your shoulders and take a few hearty whiffs of fresh air. You can breathe all day long at that window without increasing your consumption of oxygen. You use oxygen only in accordance with your needs. The thing to do is to create a need for oxygen through exercise, rather than to try to put the cart before the horse.

And, maybe you do this sort of thing. . . . You go for a ride in the country to get fresh air, but Dr. Williams explains, you don't get it because you are riding. If you want the benefit of good air, you should get out and walk.

Walking is, in the opinion of

Dr. Williams, the best exercise for the average businessman.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

SEBORRHEA.

Underlying acne in many cases in young adults, and without acne or other lesions than dry, dirty white scales in older persons, is an excessive oiliness or greasiness of the skin. This is seborrhea (flow of sebum or skin oil), or, if in older cases there is a scurfiness such as ordinary dandruff on the scalp the condition is called seborrheic dermatitis.

The dermatologists are still undecided concerning the nature and cause of the condition. The quaint notion that eating butter, cream, fat meats and the like might account for it was all very well a hundred years ago, but is not seriously considered by physicians today. Fats, fried things, rich or greasy foods have no more to do with seborrhea than sugars and sweets have to do with acne, save only in exceptional instances where an individual happens to be allergic to some such food.

Too much sebum (skin oil) accounts for the common complaint of shiny skin. Provided the use of a good solvent does not itself irritate the skin, the shininess may be removed by gently mopping the affected area with alcohol or with any favorite toilet water (most toilet waters are alcoholic) or with bay rum or with witch hazel or with plain gasoline or better carbon tetrachloride. Carbon tetrachloride is even a better solvent than gasoline, and it is non-inflammable; in fact, it is used as a fire extinguisher. When using any such solvent to remove excess oil from the face, apply it on a pledget of cotton or linen, holding the breath until the gasoline or carbon tetrachloride is wiped away. Wipe away skin gently with it—that will remove the oil and avoid irritation by friction.

White lotion is famous as a local remedy for red shiny nose or for "rum blossom" (acne rosacea) or for obstinate seborrhea of any part of the skin. It consists of a mixture of:

Zinc sulphate, 1 dram (tea-

Potassa sulphurated, 1 dram.

Rose water, enough to make four ounces.

Directions: Shake well, and pat on the skin with fingers, let dry, and wash off next morning.

A modification of white lotion with the following formula is more satisfactory in cases associated with blackheads or a scurfy state: Zinc sulphate, 30 grains (half teaspoonful).

Precipitated sulphur, 1 dram (teaspoonful).

Potassa sulphurated, 2 drams.

Anise water, enough to make four ounces.

Either of these lotions may be used once, twice or in some cases three successive nights in a week, provided the lotion does not leave the skin too irritated. It is well to remove excess of oil first with gasoline or carbon tetrachloride.

Sebacaceous cyst or wen is a lump or tumor under the skin or scalp, painless (unless accidentally infected and inflamed), remaining unchanged in size or appearance for years, as large as an egg (what kind of egg you prefer), formed from accumulation of the sebum or skin oil in the gland from which the duct is destroyed. There is but one way to deal with wen, if it is unsightly or annoying, and that is by dissecting the sac and its contents out of the skin—which is usually done under local anesthesia without detaining the patient more than an hour, through an insignificant incision which is immediately sealed.

Hollywood Today

JANE STEPS OUT: It is not only the grown-up stars in Hollywood who are style-conscious. Here is youthful Jane Withers in a party of blue crepe trimmed with a ruff of white organdy edged in lace. Buttons cross-stitched in navy add a smart touch to the throat, sleeve and belt.

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—When Jane Withers goes to a party she is as well dressed and chic as any of her grownup colleagues. For her next soiree, Jane will wear a creation of blue crepe with a ruff of embroidered white organdy edged in real lace extending to the slanting side, fastening and standing stiffly outward from the brief sleeves. Pearl buttons cross-stitched in navy add a smart accent to the throat and sleeves and to the belt bands.

Another attractive costume worn by a young star whose styles are copied the world over—Shirley Temple—is a coat made of brown and beige checked tweed, double-breasted with a collar of brown velvet. The coat, with all brown accessories, and matching beret were designed by Gwen Wakeling for Shirley to wear in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

Priscilla Lane, currently playing in "Hollywood Hotel," uses a green and gold combination for a classroom scene. The highwaisted skirt of forest green wool is topped with a gold wool sweater. To complete the costume, there is a bolero jacket of old gold wool with an indistinct line check of green. Priscilla's antelope "beanie" repeats the tone of the skirt.

Orry-Kelly has designed a new long-sleeved satin dinner gown for Olivia de Havilland's personal wardrobe. Fashioned on simple lines, the dress features bands of lattice-work running the full length of the sleeves and across the front of the belt. The bodice is styled with soft folds at the front, while the skirt disappears into a dramatic train in back.

For informal afternoon entertaining, Olivia chooses a dress wine-toned crepe, the soft fold of the front set off with silver stiletto. An off-the-face hat in a darker shade is trimmed with grosgrain ribbon which flares to make a fishtail back.

Ann Sheridan, featured Warner player, prefers tailored suits metal cloth blouses for cool parties. A large jeweled clip on the side of her brown felt pillbox hat and brown antelope glove showing a motif of hand-stitch are distinctive details of the ensemble.

It's pretty hard to make a Louise look more beautiful, the impossible is achieved with youthful dinner gown designed by her latest picture, "First Lady." The bodice of white velvet shows a quilting of gold thread (matching Anita's tresses) accented with large flat Mother of Pearl buttons. Very full chiffon skirt and gold kid sandals complete the costume.

Another outfit Anita wears the same picture is an extra-dress of black velvet styled with a broad "U" neckline and a pleated sleeves. A narrow edge of Irish crochet lace extends to the neckline to floor-length hemline. The blonde beauty's wrap is a silver fox jacket with extra-long broad shoulders and set pockets at the front.

Let's talk about a thrilling subject—YOU.

"Me?" You question. "Thrilling? Why, I'm just an ordinary girl—leading an ordinary life."

Are you sure that is all you are? Aren't you a little shy about your real self—the girl who stood in the doorway the other night with feet tingling to trip along the pathway of light made by the moon?

That is the real you—and already within you are the imagination, the beauty of spirit essential to charm. You have only to apply the principles of happiness, friendship and success. Your inner qualities will shine through and bring you admiration, friends, success!

Suppose tonight you are going to an important dinner party. You aren't worried about the impression you will make, as you used to be. You are radiant with anticipation. For you are aware of that inner, lovely self—and you're armed with a secret of power and popularity!

Miss Luciel Baum Becomes Bride of Mr. Fleisher, Of Philadelphia, at Important Ceremony in Atlanta

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Dorothy Dean boarded the train yesterday for Washington, D. C., to resume her studies at Mount Vernon Seminary, she had a small gold ring on the finger of her fiancé, Billy Mason. The same one that Dorothy's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas D. Hart, gave her husband, the late Mr. Stewart, when they became engaged. She presented the ring to her pretty granddaughter to give her fiancé, and Dorothy chose Billy's birthday anniversary as the appropriate occasion.

An exquisitely decorated cake and colorful candles graced the reception table when Dorothy, Billy, Corbie Mason and Henry Heinz sat around the festive board yesterday, to commemorate Billy's 21st day at Dorothy's Andrews drive residence.

When the spring vacation rolls around in March, Dorothy will return from the national capital to begin preparations for her marriage to Billy, which takes place some time in June, that month favored almost all the brides.

In the way, this week marks Dorothy's departure on Wednesday to Cuba with Ewing Dean, his brother-in-law. They have extensive business interests on the island of Pines which demand their attention this month.

RACE MOORE, the famous prima donna, recently visited parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore, in Chattanooga. They ensconced in their new home at the bend of the Tennessee river which commands a superb view of the river opposite the Golf and Country Club. Moore, who is Mrs. Valence Parera in private life, christened the residence Vista del Rio, which means "View of the River."

LIMPSE here and there—Catherine Campbell displays the handsome flat silver that Randy received as a wedding present from her mother, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Campbell; unwrapping the set of beautiful antique plates sent by future mother-in-law, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst; and examining over the attractive silver-bruise bowl brought back from New Orleans by Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins.

When at the Thursday evening dance at the Biltmore hotel—Miss Ida Akers smartly gowned in red satin appliqued in gold and wearing a bold band of her hair. . . . Anne Coppedge looking lovely in light blue tulle with a feathery white bird in an arresting touch to her headpiece. . . . Attractive Nancy Starr in a black lace dinner dress featuring a large cluster of red roses in front.

When Governor and Mrs. John Slaton give a luncheon at their home, Wingfield, on Peachtree road, for Mrs. William R. Hearst.

George Bland and Mrs. William Percy give a luncheon at the Biltmore for Misses Ida Akers and Laura Hill, debutantes.

Howard Cutter gives a tea at her home on Walker terrace for Mrs. William W. Bussey, recent bride.

Saints parish will be entertained at a buffet supper at 8:30 o'clock in the parish house.

The garden division of the West and Woman's Club sponsors a luncheon at Sears, Roebuck & Company at 11:30 o'clock.

Miss Dickey Weds Walter McElreath

MRS. RICHARD ROGER FLEISHER, OF PHILADELPHIA.

The marriage of Miss Luciel Baum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Baum, to Richard Roger Fleisher, of Philadelphia, was solemnized yesterday at 12:30 o'clock at the Biltmore hotel. Dr. David Marx performed the ceremony in the presence of the bride's family and a number of the groom's family attending the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. Franklin C. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. David Teller Fleisher, Miss Frances Fleisher, Arthur A. Fleisher, Edward Moos, Richard Newberger, Alexander A. Dannebaum, Stephen G. Friedman, all of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gimbel, of Rydal, Pa.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a stunning model fashioned of brown crepe with a yoke of gold metal cloth introduced on the close fitting bodice. She wore a smart brown felt hat and brown accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of gardenias.

Mrs. Baum, the bride's mother, was attired in a gown of navy blue crepe trimmed with tulle and worn with a blue turban hat made of feathers. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of gardenias. Mrs. Franklin C. Watkins, of Philadelphia, the groom's mother, wore for the important occasion a black crepe ensemble with a black felt hat and shoulder bouquet of deep purple orchids.

Miss Frances Fleisher, of Philadelphia, the groom's sister, wore a dark brown crepe gown trimmed in metallic embroidery. Her hat of brown felt was an off-the-face model and she wore a shoulder spray of gardenias.

After the breakfast Mr. Fleisher and his bride left for a motor trip to Miami, Fla. For travelling the bride donned a handsome cocoa ermine fur coat. After January 25, Mr. and Mrs. Fleisher will reside in Philadelphia where the groom holds an executive position with Gimbel Brothers and where he belongs to the Philmont Club. The bride, who possesses golden hair and hazel colored eyes, has enjoyed wide popularity in Atlanta and is the sister of Mrs. Julian Wolf and George A. Baum. Her parents have resided in Atlanta for the past 25 years and her father is one of this city's most highly esteemed and prominent citizens in civic and business circles.

The bride attended Ohio State College and was graduated from Edgewood Park College at Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. Fleisher is the son of David Teller Fleisher and Mrs. Franklin C. Watkins, of Philadelphia, the former Miss Fridolyn Mastbaum Gimbel, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis A. Gimbel, of Philadelphia, are the groom's grandparents, the latter being the renowned mercantile merchant of the Pennsylvania city.

Misses Frances Fleisher and Mary Louise Fleisher are the groom's sisters, and he is the nephew of Ellis A. Gimbel Jr. and Richard Gimbel, of New York.

The groom was prepared for Yale University at the Episcopal Academy in Overbrook, Pa. While enrolled at Yale he received many high honors and during his senior year he was a member of the class football team.

Prior to the wedding yesterday the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baum entertained on Saturday evening at a buffet supper at their Paces Ferry road home in honor of the bridal couple and out-of-town guests here for the wedding.

the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Richardson and Mr. Milner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Milner, prominent citizens of Redbone district.

Y. W. C. A. Lists Program Arranged For Working Girls

All girls working in five and ten-cent stores, factories, beauty parlors, restaurants or industrial plants are invited to the Y. W. C. A. on Monday evenings for fun, recreation, new friendships, classes and hobbies. Mrs. Mary Kate Duskin, industrial secretary, announces that in addition to the regular classes, there will be interesting speakers and musical features during the weekly fellowship hours and dances and other special events will be planned by club members.

On Monday evening Mrs. George Little, of the Y. W. C. A. board of directors and chairman of public affairs committee, will speak. She will emphasize the individuals' responsibility in keeping abreast of current happenings and an interest in governmental problems. Supper, served at 6:15 o'clock, is preceded by a class in social dancing, taught by Miss Una Brook. After supper there is swimming and Miss Gladys Morrison conducts a class in correct speech.

The club is interested in a series of books on health, diet and correct foods which are being circulated among members. After these have been read, Mrs. Susan Everett will lead discussion on main points. Other classes will be added as requested by members.

Mrs. Maye Bosshardt is president of the Y Industrial Club and other officers include Misses Mae Scoggins, Beulah Cooper, Ollie Mae Fleming, Mrs. Dan Rencher, Misses Bernice Stephens, Una Brook, Alta Hulse. Girls interested in joining should phone Mrs. Duskin, at Walnut 8961.

Miss Royal Weds Son P. Griffin

WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 9.—Miss Margaret Elizabeth Royal, of Waycross, became the bride of Son P. Griffin, of Ocilla, on Wednesday at the First Baptist church, with Rev. R. T. Russell, pastor of that church, officiating.

Mrs. William G. Townsend rendered nuptial music, and Mrs. Will C. Hughes sang.

Hughes Fisher, of Brunswick, was best man, and ushers and groomsmen were Dr. Wynton L. Hall, William Yarbrough, Kinchey Bell, I. H. Richardson and Thomas Morgan. Miss Sarah Harriet Underwood was maid of honor and Lilla Mae Zachry, Miss Elizabeth Parker and Miss Evelyn Lee were bridesmaids.

They wore taffeta dresses in shades of green, gold, orchid and American Beauty, and carried Talamas roses.

The lovely bride entered with her brother, Harmon Royal, who gave her in marriage. She wore a dress of white satin fashioned with fitted bodice and standing lace collar. A built-in train edged with lace finished the skirt. The veil of white tulle was caught to her hair with orange blossoms, and her flowers were white roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the bride's mother, Mrs. C. W. Royal, entertained the bridal party and a few friends at a reception at the home of Mrs. Robert T. Hereford.

Mr. Griffin and his bride left for their trip to Florida. Upon their return they will reside in Ocilla, where Mr. Griffin is connected with the Industrial Life Insurance Company.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Vera Eugenia Cox, of Waycross, to William Henry Booth, of Morganton, N. C., which was solemnized here on December 28. Mrs. Booth was graduated from the Wareboro High school in 1935.

Mr. Booth is the son of Mrs. Lillian Booth, of Morganton, N. C., and a grandson of the late W. H. Booth, of Marion, N. C.

Booth left for a wedding trip to Florida after which they will reside in Morganton, N. C.

PUBLIC HEARINGS ON JURISTS URGED

Senator Would Avert Another 'Black Episode.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, citing the impending vacancy on the supreme court, renewed today his demand for public senate hearings on all nominations to judicial positions.

In a letter to Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, chairman of the senate rules committee, Bridges said the forthcoming retirement of Justice Sutherland from the high court called for quick action to avert "the danger of a recurrence of the Black episode."

Bridges said that, figuratively speaking, "a horse is as wet inside the barn" and that the doors should be closed "before it is too late."

BOARD DEFENDS PENSION RESERVE

Replies To Suggestion of 'Pay as You Go.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Social Security Board defended its old-age pension reserve in a report to congress today.

Replying to suggestions that the pension system be put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis, the board said: "As the proportion of old people in the population increases, as must be expected, and as benefit amounts become larger . . . annual benefit payments will amount to much more than the sums collected annually under the tax rates established by the act."

'Texas Trail' Gallops To Screen at Capitol

A stage show depicting life in the Pine Ridge territory is featured this week at the Capitol theater while Hopalong Cassidy in "Texas Trail" is the screen attraction.

The Pine Ridge Follies, under the direction of Ezra Buzzington, and including characters made famous by Lum and Abner, is a "take off" on the mountaineers as they prepare an act for the Atlanta stage.

Hopalong is just as interesting in this new episode of his western pictures as in the past, and this time beats a gang of wild horse rustlers in the dust of the old western round ups. Of course Bill Boyd plays Cassidy and others in the cast are Windy Haynes, Judith Allen, Russell Hayden and Billy King.—J. W.

INSTALLMENT XXVII

When Craig left, Brenda said with a sigh, "I feel that I've come to the end of a long journey. I'm going to marry Craig after all. Going to marry Craig! We've waited so long for each other."

"And in a couple of years I'm going to leave the stage. I've always wanted to retire at the height of my career. The exit that way is so much more graceful. And Craig will take a leave of absence and we'll go abroad. I'll leave the stage to you. We'll all be one family. I'll leave it to you to carry on."

She nodded. "So much has happened tonight, Karen. But you've been thinking of Philip..."

"And tonight I loved him more than ever—if that's possible. I don't feel sad about it any more. I feel—empty. That's worse."

"And I feel empty of secrets that have been like weights dragging me down for years. Have I answered all your questions?"

Karen nodded. "Yes. That day I told you about myself you knew."

"I waited until you had proved yourself an actress. I was afraid it might upset you if you knew. Philip still doesn't know who you are. Over the phone from England he was merely intrigued with your story. Luckily he couldn't see my face and know what his words were doing to me."

She smiled. "You dropped your purse in a theater lobby and everything happened from there."

Today would be like any other day, Karen thought as she looked out the window of her room. Today people would eat and talk and work. And tonight people would have their money to see her. But Philip wouldn't be in the theater tonight. He'd be entertaining the members of his wedding party!

That same afternoon she was trying on suits and hats and shoes in the exclusive shop where Brenda bought her clothes and thinking, "You can't show how you feel. You can't look miserable for Brenda's sake. She's happy."

Brenda said, "That's lovely on you, of a black suit with a silver fox collar."

Touching the soft fur, Karen smiled. "For your wedding, too. That's right—smile. Tomorrow you must smile at Philip at his wedding reception. Oh, how tired her mouth would be from smiling!"

Then Brenda said, "I'm going to leave you as soon as you've decided on a hat. Why not stop at the hospital and see Craig? He'd be delighted. He called this morning before you were up and he's like a boy in love. Don't try to hide your misery, child. Your eyes are frightened, though your mouth is smiling. It isn't fair that love like yours should be wasted!"

She pulled her furs over her shoulders. "I really think I'd better run along. I'm going to see Lilyan for a moment before the wedding rehearsal. That's at three. I'll just have time to see her before she leaves for the church."

In Craig's large sunny office Karen waited. There was a photograph of Brenda on his desk. Why had Brenda gone to see Lilyan? Had the visit anything to do with her—Karen?

"I'm all mixed up," she thought. "But I'll be all right after tomorrow. I'll know then. I'll see anything to hope for. I'll straighten out my life and be all right. I've got to be."

But since that fateful night in the rehearsal of his wedding he had never wanted this night.

Arriving at the church, Lilyan Cannon first.

"A fine wedding rehearsal everybody late!" Tony said, smiling, shaking his hand. "Isn't here, either. Nor is nedy, your best man. V everybody?"

"Lilyan isn't here?" Tony misinterpreted the look in his voice. "Not w are you? You don't have worried about her. But I'll places with you in case you your mind."

Lilyan wasn't here. Pray she won't come. Poor Lilyan! She didn't know what an empty marriage this would be. She got to get yourself together. You got to get a hold on yourself. Everything seemed to be go pieces. It was like a crazy. It was like the first rehearsal bad play in which no one knew lines.

They laughed. "Say, you're the jitters! Let's go out and cigarette."

But scarcely had his c been lighted when two taxis ped simultaneously before church. Sid Kennedy, always a hurry, always late, alighted one Lilyan from the other. Tony tossed the cigarette sidewalk.

"Now we can get started the wedding bells ring!" Philip straightened his and relaxed the tightness of mouth. Lilyan, walking b, looked lovely in a b suit.

"She must never know," I thought. "But never is a long time."

At twilight Karen stood on hospital steps. She had spent the afternoon with Craig, seemed loath to let her go. dark eyes seemed to twinkle. "Why, doctor, I c know you had a daughter!" had had tea in his office.

He kissed her warm cheek and watched her slim ure in a brown coat and green descend the steps and walk a ly down the shady street. thought, "I know why her wandered to the clock so I'd do anything in the world her but I can't make Philip her. I can't stop her marriage."

But suddenly he remembered the night in Baltimore when I ip hadn't been able to sit thr his own play.

Her life was like a puzzle. pieces that would not fit. K thought, as she walked away i the hospital. Nothing she ever experienced was compar to feelings of desolation and ness. "If someone hit me n wouldn't feel it. I'm n u Oh, I can't be cheated of the love I shall ever have." Peopl the street were enemies. The was ugly.

On Fifth avenue she passed church in which Philip and ran would be married tomor. But the church was in dact. Obviously the rehearsal was o With her own key she let l self in the apartment.

Mrs. Reid came out of her ro smiling. "Your packages ca Miss Karen! I opened them but that's a lovely suit! Tomorrow Mr. Philip gets married and Monday Miss Brenda. You'll the next!"

"Is Miss Brenda home?" "No. And she hasn't cal Shall I let the cook..." Karen pulled off the green I "I'm sure she'll be here." Continued Tomorrow.

LIFE IN ANCIENT EGYPT.

VI—Simple Homes and "Sacred Fire"

By digging down in certain places in Egypt, men have found the remains of ancient homes.

The houses of the middle class were larger, and often contained three or four rooms, besides kind of cellar. The cellar was used for storing food and wine and sometimes contained stable for cattle. Slaves might be placed down there with the cattle. The floor above this cellar, or pen was likely to be built from the trunk of palm trees, split lengthwise and laid side by side. The walls were made of bricks, well baked in the sun.

The Egyptians usually built their homes where they would be free of danger from the Nile flood but there was another danger. Rain was seldom heavy, but perhaps once in 20 or 30 years there would be a terrible downpour. This would destroy hundreds of homes. The owners would later go back to the spots where their homes had stood, and would build new houses on the ruins of the old. That is why we find "layers of ruins of ancient homes where we use the shovel in Egypt."

At Gull's command, Dick was brought forward to the altar where he was to be sacrificed to the flaming God, bloodthirsty deity of the men of the jungle. He walked stolidly. Now at all hope was gone, and death was almost upon him, his fear gave way to calm resignation.

HOWARD FOSS DIES; POWER EXECUTIVE

Heart Attack Fatal to President of Savannah Electric Firm.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Howard Coburn Foss, president of the Savannah Electric & Power Company and one of Savannah's foremost citizens, died early today of a heart attack.
Foss was born November 15, 1879, in Farmington, Maine, and was the son of Giddings Lane Foss and Augusta Coburn Foss. He married Eunice de Bard in 1910. Educated at the University of Maine, Foss was graduated with a B. S. degree in electrical engineering in 1905. He was a student engineer with Stone & Webster from 1905 to 1906 and general superintendent of the Paducah Electric Company from 1907 to 1909; manager of the Sydney & Grace Bay Railway 1909 to 1911; manager of the Cape Brewton Electric Company 1911 to 1912; manager of the Savannah Electric Company 1912 to 1921 and president of the company from 1921 to 1938.
Foss was chairman of the industrial committee of Savannah, former here in 1928 to attract industry to Savannah.
He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eunice de Bard Foss, two daughters, now away at school, Misses Eunice de Bard and Laura Coburn Foss. Funeral services will be held at his residence at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial will be in Bonaventure cemetery.

MOSCOW IS SILENT ON RUBENS ARREST
Foreign Office Refuses To Disclose If Action Taken on U. S. Request.

MOSCOW, Jan. 9.—(UP)—The Soviet foreign office tonight refused to say whether it had taken any action on the request of United States authorities for information concerning the arrest of Mrs. Adolf Arnold Rubens, an American citizen, supposedly held in Ljubanka prison.

Efforts to discover through American embassy sources what happened to Mrs. Rubens, who entered Russia under a fraudulent passport as "Mrs. Donald L. Robinson," also were fruitless.
Under an agreement with the United States made in 1933, Russia is required to report within 72 hours the arrest of any American citizen.
The foreign office admitted it had received such a request.

FIRST FLIGHT SESSIONS ENDOWED BY BANKER
NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(P)—Edmund C. Lynch, New York investment banker, has contributed $10,000 to the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences to endow the annual meetings on the anniversary of the first flights of the Wright brothers December 17.

The gift, announced by the institute today, was made in memory of his brother, Vernon Lynch.
Asserting "capital needs labor" and "labor needs capital," Father Coughlin said "it is unsound for the industrialist to deprive the laborer, through coercion, of those sufficient funds to purchase the finished products of factories; it is unsound for the financier or the capitalist to deprive the industrialist of productive power; and it is equally unsound for the laborer, even though he suffers economically, to entertain the theory that his ills will be cured by withdrawing both the financier and industrialist from the web of society."

MAN KILLED BY SAW.
NASHUA, N. H., Jan. 9.—(UP)—While sawing logs outside his home here today, Ray Bullard, 26, fell across the whirling circular blade which severed him completely at the waist.

WILLIAM M. ROSE, 62, WAR VETERAN, DIES
William Mat Rose, 62, Spanish-American War veteran, died yesterday at Hospital 48, one month after he was admitted.

He had come to the hospital from his home at Godfrey, Ga. The body will be taken there today by Brandon-Bond-Condor Company for funeral rites and burial.

China Training Pretty Women For Spy Service
By JAMES A. MILLS.
HANKOW, China, Jan. 9.—(AP) Girls in China are being trained as spies to ferret out Japanese military secrets.

They range in age from 15 to 30, but most of them are less than 20. Many of them are exceedingly intelligent, resourceful and pretty. More than half of them are university graduates.

The training is divided into three groups: Military, espionage and propaganda. Only those of perfect physical fitness are allowed to undergo military training, which aims at preparing them for the front line trenches. The others take course in professional spying or propaganda work.

Visits Spy School.
I visited one of these female spy-training schools in Honan province.
I found groups of attractive young women wearing the regulation Chinese army uniform of grass-green color like the men wear, including steel helmet, Sam Browne belt, revolver holster and canvas shoes.

Except for their bobbed hair, it would be difficult for the visitor to distinguish these girls from the Chinese army.

The male military instructor took me to the girls' dormitory. Thirty cots were neatly arranged in rows. There were few personal belongings visible, and no traces of powder or rouge. China is at war, the instructor explained, and there is no time or inclination for such conceits.

There were a few books on the desks. The walls were decorated with pictures of famous persons and of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek.

Arise At 5:30 A. M.
The girls rise at 5:30 a. m. for a class in calisthenics. At 7 o'clock breakfast is served, after which classes are held from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 4. The fundamental principles of military science, of spying methods and of the art of publicity are taught.

The manner in which these girls have taken on a man's job, prepared for all the dangers of soldiering and the infinitely greater risks of espionage work, has provided an inspiration to the nation's womanhood, who are anxious to do their share in opposing the Japanese invaders.

LUMAN CARPENTER, AUDITOR, SUCCUMBS

Heart Attack Causes Death of Internal Revenue Bureau Worker.

Luman Carpenter, 65-year-old auditor for the Internal Revenue Department, dropped dead at church services yesterday in the Kirkwood Baptist church.
A physician said his death was caused by a heart attack.
Mr. Carpenter, who lived at 2128 Ridgedale road, N. E., came to the Atlanta Internal Revenue Bureau in 1924. He had worked formerly in the Treasury Department at Washington, becoming employed there in 1899.

Born in Benton Harbor, Mich., he went to Washington as a young man. He was a member of the Kirkwood church and had been a regular attendant for some time.

Surviving are two sons, L. W. Carpenter, of Washington, and Earl C. Carpenter, of Atlanta; four daughters, Mrs. Dan Laxson, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. Richard Earle and Mrs. Ralph Howard, both of Washington; and Mrs. George P. Wymann, of Pineville, Ky.

The body was taken to the A. S. Turner Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

'JIM' BUDURES DIES OF HEART AILMENT Restaurant Owner, 53, Succumbs Unexpectedly at His Home.

James Budures, 53, who came to Georgia from Greece while he was a small boy, died unexpectedly yesterday at his home, 1312 Mc-Lendon avenue, N. E.

Members of the family were in the front room with Mr. Budures when he suffered a heart attack.

He died shortly after.
Known as "Jim" to hundreds of friends, Mr. Budures operated a restaurant at Ivy and Ellis streets.

He had been in business there for more than 30 years, having formerly managed a store near Five Points.
He was a member of the Greek Orthodox church and of Fulton Lodge No. 216, F. & A. M. Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Dena Budures Campbell and Miss Magdalene Budures, and one son, Nick Budures, all of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

FORECASTER EXPECTS WARM RAIN TODAY
Warm rain clouds would hover over the city today, putting to flight the cold snap which struck Atlanta Friday, the weatherman said yesterday.

Rising temperatures were recorded throughout the south yesterday as the predicted drop to 1938 lows failed to materialize. Warmer weather will bring rain during the afternoon, the weatherman said.

Temperature extremes yesterday were 24 and 44 degrees and the estimated low for today is 30 degrees; the weatherman said.
